THAT the little settlement of Leistville at the intersection of Routes 56 and 104 in Saltcreek-twp has had three different names during its existence of more than 100 years. The first name of the settlement up to 1838 was Craig's Place and is believed to have been named for a family of that name. Sometime later the name was changed to Camp Charlotte Post Office, this in memory of the camp of Lord Dunmore which stood nearby. During the Civil War the place was again renamed—this time to Leistville, its present name. It was given this name because of the number of Leist families living there. Sometime between 1875 and 1881 a petition was sent to Washington seeking to change the name back to Camp Charlotte Post Office. This was rejected by government authorities on the ground that it was a double name. Today, Leistville is just another spot on Pickaway-co's map and has gained its chief renown for the large number of fatal auto accidents at the intersection.

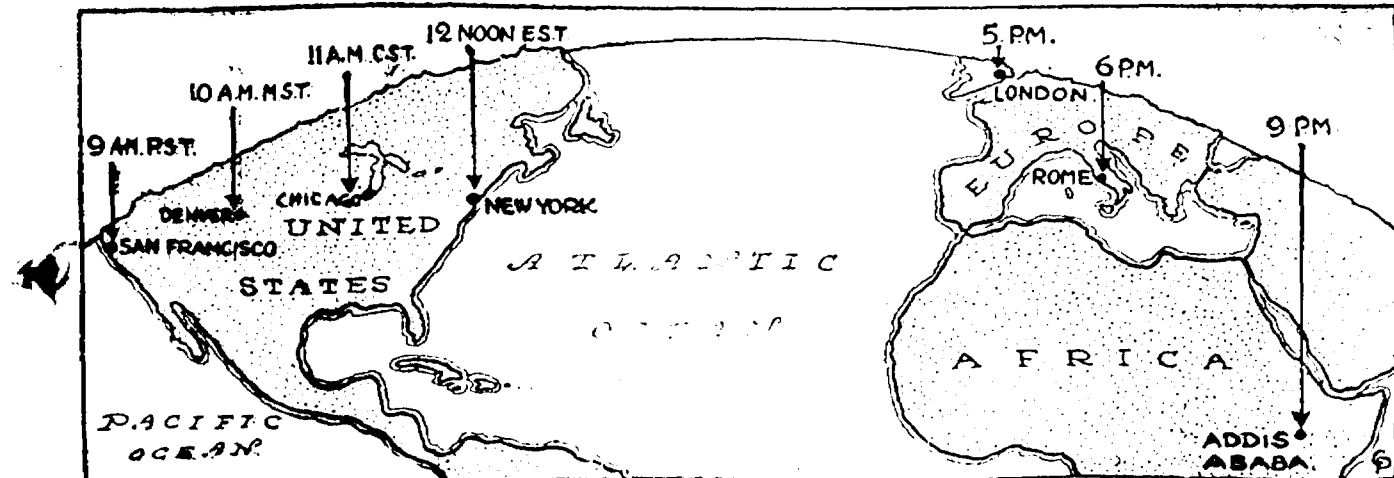

That Circleville sent prompt aid to the victims of the disastrous Chicago fire of October, 1871, said to have been started by Mrs. O'Leary's cow. The fire started on Saturday evening, October 7, and raged until Monday afternoon, resulting in $300,000,000 damage and virtually destroying the city.

A relief committee was organized in this city, headed by Mayor John N. Brunner and 100 barrels of flour were rushed to the stricken city within 24 hours after the disaster. Various civic organizations also sent money contributions. The Odd Fellows led the list with $100. William Doane, W. B. Marfield and John Groce comprised the finance committee which gathered aid and the committee in turn was helped by workers throughout the city. Not only food, but clothing, lumber and other building materials were donated by Circleville merchants, who joined hundreds of other cities in sending aid to the fire victims.

THAT buggy racing on Main-st as a Sunday afternoon diversion in 1870 resulted in many protests from the conservative-minded individuals of the town including the editor of The Herald, who wrote in his newspaper, December 5, 1870: "How long will it take our city to acquire the reputation of being the most heathenish place in the land, if buggy racing is to go on in our streets as it has for several Sabbaths past? Is there any place where as bold Sabbath desecration is carried on with such impunity?"

That among Pickaway-co's oldest citizens was Mrs. Tabitha McGath, who died at her home in Deerereck-twp in July, 1870, at the age of 109 years, three months and 26 days. She came to Pickaway-co from Kentucky in 1810, being one of the original settlers. The mother of eight children, she also claimed 108 grand and great grandchildren.

ITALY REJECTS PEACE PROPOSAL

MUSSOLINI'S MOVE CAUSES EXCITEMENT

League of Nations Sees II Duce's Rejection As War Move

VOTED BY CABINET
Combined Efforts of League Fruitless

ROME, Sept. 21.—Italy today rejected the League of Nations proposals for settlement of the Italo-Ethiopian dispute. The decision was made at a momentous special session of the cabinet presided over by Premier Benito Mussolini himself. In rejecting the League's proposed settlement Premier Mussolini made what probably was the most momentous decision of his entire career. It was a decision which many believed made the difference between war and peace for all Europe.

Italy held the proposals were "unacceptable," it was stated in an official statement issued following the session, which lasted two hours and 50 minutes.

On Brink of War
The decision was made with full realization all Europe is on the brink of war.

It was made in the face of the presence of a great fleet of British airplanes and fighting ships in Mediterranean waters, and in face of a blunt warning issued last night by France that Paris would stand by England to the limit in applying full league sanctions against any aggressor at war.

Italian circles were aware of the gravity of the crisis, but stood behind II Duce in his contention Italy now had gone too far with preparations to invade Ethiopia to back down, even in the face of the Great British threat.

The cabinet ministers were aware that world powers, great and little, had joined Britain and France under the league's cloak at Geneva, and that, now Italy has rejected the proposed league settlement, discussion of sanctions against Italy cannot be prevented.

Meets Next Week
The cabinet announced it would meet again next Tuesday, Sept. 24. Purpose of the meeting was not announced immediately.

The rejected settlement proposals envisaged an international control of Ethiopia—a point favorable to Italians because they held it proved Ethiopia could not govern herself—but did not give Italy any special part in this control.

Furthermore, the proposed settlement provided Emperor Haile Selassie could approve or disapprove of the international advisors selected. This point was especially objectionable to Italy.

Premier Mussolini told his cabinet the proposals must be rejected because they did not afford a settlement of the Ethiopian problem.

II Duce contends Ethiopia needs foreign supervision, but also contends Italy must expand coloniality. He has chosen Ethiopia as the scene of this expansion.

Today's grave reply to the league blasted hopes that II Duce might delay his answer and give the Geneva powers more time to settle the Ethiopian affair.

Aviator Seeking New Solo Mark

Felix Waitkus Leaves for Lithuania; Backed by Countrymen

FLOYD BENNETT Field, N. Y., Sept. 21.—A daring aviator took off in the gray light of dawn here today on a 4500 mile solo non-stop flight to Kaunas, Lithuania. He is Lieut. Felix Waitkus, veteran United States army reserve flyer.

Waitkus' Lockheed Vega monoplane left the airport runway and took to the air at 7:45 a. m. EST. Waitkus who had been planning his flight for more than a month, hoped to cover the 4500 mile stretch in 28 hours.

Would Set Record
If he succeeds he will have established new speed and distance records for a solo flight.

Flying the Great Circle route, Waitkus expected to be over Newfoundland ten hours after the takeoff. His jump across the Atlantic will begin at St. Johns, N. F., and will end, according to calculations, when he strikes the coast of Ireland at Athlone. He will first touch England at Liverpool and then fly across the North sea and follow the coast of Germany to Memel, the Lithuanian port on the Baltic sea. He will then fly in a northeasterly direction to Kaunas, the Lithuanian capital.

Waitkus' plane was loaded with 700 gallons of gasoline. It is the same type of ship as the "Winnie Mac," in which the late Wiley Post made two memorable world flights, and is equipped with a new wasp motor, giving it an average speed of 170 miles an hour.

When the solons return next week the budget transfer bill, voted out by the house finance committee, will be brought to the floor of the house. Despite pressure from administration factions, a number of Democrats will join with the Republicans in voting the measure down. The transfer bill seeks to make up vetoed items, found to be necessary to run state universities and departments, by funds from salary reductions in the respective budgets. It is the governor's method of avoiding a new appropriation bill.

The other major part of the governor's program, the $20,000,000 bond issue, will be taken up Tuesday.

Robbers, moving in nearly the same way as those who entered the Hamilton store at Fox post-office Thursday evening, broke into the B. C. Hughes general store in Atlanta Friday night.

While a window was broken at the Hamilton store, the thieves crawled under the Hughes building and pried three boards loose to gain entrance.

They stole 300 pennies and some cigarettes, an early survey of the store disclosed.

Mr. Hughes discovered the theft when he opened his store Saturday morning. He notified the office of Sheriff Charles Radcliff.

BELIEVE ROGERS TO BE RELEASED

WEST CHESTER, Pa., Sept. 21.—The feeling prevailed in this quiet Quaker town today that Henry Huddleston Rogers, Jr., and his friend, William J. Kelley, motion picture cameraman, would be exonerated of all connection with the death of Evelyn Hoey when the inquest into the young stage star's passing is concluded on Monday.

At last night's session of the inquest, the highlight came when Rogers was asked by the district attorney:

"Did you shoot Evelyn Hoey?" For the first time in two hours of testimony which held a courtroom rapt he raised his voice to its heights:

"No! I'd do anything in the world for Miss Hoey! I... I'd have given my life to keep her from shooting."

The singer, who was shot to death the night of Sept. 11 in the bedroom at Indian run farm, died by her own hand, he swore.

ACE BUGLER SENTENCED TO PRISON

Henry Lowe is the man, and is pictured, above, in Cleveland jail playing on his trumpet awaiting transfer to prison. Protege Still on Trail Of Fleeing Barrymore

CHICAGO, Sept. 21.—John Barrymore, graying Lothario of stage and screen, was heading directly into the arms of Elaine Barrie today.

Whether that was his goal or not had nothing to do with it, the facts being that Elaine was anxiously awaiting him in Kansas City, and Barrymore was speeding there as fast as the Burlington's American Royal would take him.

Observers of their fantastic cross-country game of hide and seek, however, considered the idea that Barrymore merely keeping up the game with a daring ruse and was not yet ready to give up.

Barrymore took the train at Mendota, Ill., a hamlet 90 miles west of Chicago, after being taxied there from Lagrange where he holed up during the day and evening in a spectacular attempt to lose his pursuing protege.

Elaine had overshot her quarry early in the morning after beating Barrymore into Chicago by airplane as he rode the Twentieth Century from New York. John penetrated her Garboesque disguise of horn-rimmed goggles in a trice and sidled out the opposite side of the train. Elaine deduced that he had boarded the Santa Fe Chief for the west coast. So she hurried over to that station and climbed on only to find herself alone.

John, sporting several days' growth of whiskers and two bodyguards, hid himself out to the somnolent suburb of Lagrange. He rested for the afternoon after being turned down when he asked for a drink in a cigar store.

Robert H. Bates, 57, a printer in Circleville for 43 years, died at his home at 222 N. Court-st at 7:45 a. m. Saturday, following a week's illness.

Although Mr. Bates had been in failing health for several months, his death came as a shock to his friends in the city and to his fellow workers at The Herald, where he had been a linotype operator for the past seven years.

He became ill while working Sept. 12 and went home for a rest. He appeared to be making a slow recovery when death came.

"Bob" Bates started work in the printing business at the age of 15. For 35 years he was employed by his brother-in-law, the late Walter C. Darst in the publishing of the old Circleville Herald. Johnson, were consolidated into the present Herald, he went to work as a linotype operator. He also had his own print shop in the Odd Fellows building. This was formerly owned by the late Miss May Lowe.

Native of Indiana
Mr. Bates was born on March 6, 1878 at Evansville, Ind., the son of Thomas A. Bates, a Civil War veteran, and Emma Hackley Bates. His father was a native of Wolverhampton, England, and his mother's birthplace was in Bardonia, Ky.

He was married on November 30, 1905, to Kathryn Palm, of this city, who survives him. Other survivors are two brothers, James T. Bates of Portsmouth and Alfred Bates of Bellevue, Washington; three sisters, Mrs. Walter C. Darst, W. Main-st, Mrs. John F. Small of Roanoke, Va., and Mrs. John K. Knowles, of Toledo.

THAT the little settlement of Leistville at the intersection of Routes 56 and 104 in Salt Creek township has had three different names during its existence of more than 100 years. The first name of the settlement up to 1838 was Craig's Place and is believed to have been named for a family of that name. Sometime later the name was changed to Camp Charlotte Post Office, this in memory of the camp of Lord Dunmore which stood nearby. During the Civil War the place was again renamed—this time to Leistville, its present name. It was given this name because of the number of Leist families living there. Sometime between 1875 and 1881 a petition was sent to Washington seeking to change the name back to Camp Charlotte Post Office. This was rejected by government authorities on the ground that it was a double name. Today, Leistville is just another spot on Pickaway-co's map and has gained its chief renown for the large number of fatal auto accidents at the intersection.

MUSSOLINI'S MOVE CAUSES EXCITEMENT

League of Nations Sees II Duce's Rejection As War Move

VOTED BY CABINET

Combined Efforts of League Fruitless

ROME, Sept. 21—Italy today rejected the League of Nations proposals for settlement of the Italo-Ethiopian dispute.

The decision was made at a momentous special session of the cabinet presided over by Premier Benito Mussolini himself.

In rejecting the League's proposed settlement Premier Mussolini made what probably was the most momentous decision of his entire career.

It was a decision which many believed made the difference between war and peace for all Europe.

League "Appalled"

LONDON, Sept. 21—League of Nations circles were "appalled" by Italy's rejection of league proposals for settling the East African controversy, a Reuters message from Geneva stated today.

tween war and peace for all Europe.

Italy held the proposals were "inacceptable," it was stated in an official statement issued following the session, which lasted two hours and 50 minutes.

On Brink of War

The decision was made with full realization all Europe is on the brink of war.

It was made in the face of the presence of a great fleet of British airplanes and fighting ships in Mediterranean waters, and in face of a blunt warning issued last night by France that Paris would apply full league sanctions against any aggressor at war.

Italian circles were aware of the gravity of the crisis, but stood behind II Duce in his contention Italy now had gone too far with preparations to invade Ethiopia to back down, even in the face of the Great British threat.

The cabinet ministers were aware that world powers, great and little, had joined Britain and France under the league's cloak at Geneva, and that, now Italy has rejected the proposed league settlement, discussion of sanctions against Italy cannot be prevented.

Meets Next Week

The cabinet announced it would meet again next Tuesday, Sept. 24. Purpose of the meeting was not announced immediately.

The rejected settlement proposals envisaged an international control of Ethiopia—a point favorable to Italians because they held it proved Ethiopia could not govern herself—but did not give Italy any special part in this control.

Furthermore, the proposed settlement provided Emperor Haile Selassie could approve or disapprove of the international advisors selected. This point was especially objectionable to Italy.

Premier Mussolini told his cabinet the proposals must be rejected because they did not afford a settlement of the Ethiopian problem.

II Duce contends Ethiopia needs foreign supervision, but also contends Italy must expand colonial empire. He has chosen Ethiopia as the scene of this expansion.

Today's grave reply to the league blasted hopes that II Duce might delay his answer and give the Geneva powers more time to settle the Ethiopian affair.

BELIEVE ROGERS TO BE RELEASED

WEST CHESTER, Pa., Sept. 21—The feeling prevailed in this quiet Quaker town today that Henry Huddleston Rogers, Jr., and his friend, William J. Kelley, motion picture cameraman, would be exonerated of all connection with the death of Evelyn Hoye when the inquest into the young stage star's passing is concluded on Monday.

At last night's session of the inquest, the highlight came when Rogers was asked by the district attorney:

"Did you shoot Evelyn Hoye?"

"For the first time in two hours of testimony which held a courtroom rapt he raised his voice to his heights:

"No! I'd do anything in the world for Miss Hoye! I... I'd have given my life to keep her from shooting."

The singer, who was shot to death the night of Sept. 11 in the bedroom at Indian run farm, died by her own hand, he swore.

ACE BUGLER SENTENCED TO PRISON

Henry Lowe

The man who brought tears to General John Pershing's eyes when he played taps over the Unknown Soldier's grave in Arlington National cemetery has been sentenced to penitentiary for stealing an automobile in Chicago and crossing into Ohio. Henry Lowe is the man, and is pictured, above, in Cleveland jail playing on his trumpet awaiting transfer to prison. Lowe's career as one of the ace trumpeters has taken him virtually all over the world. His wife also received a sentence when the couple were apprehended in Cleveland after renting the au to from a Chicago agency.

Protege Still on Trail Of Fleeing Barrymore

CHICAGO, Sept. 21—John Barrymore, graying Lothario of stage and screen, was heading directly into the arms of Elaine Barrie today.

Whether that was his goal or not had nothing to do with it, the facts being that Elaine was anxiously awaiting him in Kansas City, and Barrymore was speeding there as fast as the Burlington's American Royal would take him.

Observers of their fantastic cross-country game of hide and seek, however, considered the idea that Barrymore merely keeping up the game with a daring ruse and was not yet ready to give up.

Barrymore took the train at Mendota, Ill., a hamlet 90 miles west of Chicago, after being taxed there from Lagrange where he holed up during the day and evening in a spectacular attempt to lose his pursuing protege.

Elaine had overshot her quarry early in the morning after beating Barrymore into Chicago by airplane as he rode the Twentieth Century from New York. John penetrated her Garboesque disguise of horn-rimmed goggles in a trice and slid out the opposite side of the train. Elaine deduced that he had boarded the Santa Fe Chief for the west coast. So she hurried over to that station and climbed on only to find herself alone.

John, sporting several days' growth of whiskers and two bodyguards, hid himself out to the somnolent suburb of Lagrange. He rested for the afternoon after being turned down when he asked for a drink in a cigar store.

KRINN BOOKS STELLAR ACT

Five Flying Lavans, Trapeze Act Seen at High Class Fairs, Comes to Show

The Five Flying Lavans, a trapeze act featured at the Ohio State fair, Louisville fair, and the Fireman's show in St. Louis, will be one of the free acts at the Pumpkin show, according to an announcement Saturday noon from T. D. Krinn, show director.

The act is a swinging trapeze casting performance and will be staged at Main and Pickaway-sts at 1 and 7 p. m. daily.

This act is the second under contract for the show. The other is the Stratosphere Man, a high pole act, to be shown at Court and High-sts at 3 and 9 p. m. daily.

Mr. Krinn stated he had two other acts under consideration but so far their contracts have not been signed.

Arrangements have also been completed to bring Ed Straßburg, Columbus, and his educated chimpanzee, Sammy, to the show.

Mack Parrett, secretary of the show society, reports deposits have been pouring in for street space. A request has been filed for space by the federal soil erosion department and directors will act on the request at the next meeting Tuesday.

It was also learned plans are under consideration for a dog show this year.

TWO TRUCKS HIT

Two trucks collided at Court and Main-sts Saturday. The accident happened when a truck hauling tomatoes struck a Wonder bread truck backing from the curb.

MOVING SEASON GAINS HEADWAY

Business Good for Transfer Companies; Wives Prove Best "Regeres"

Moving, that great all-American game in which you bid farewell to the old homestead and cast your lots with different wallpaper, is gaining headway in the fall season in Circleville.

During the last two weeks the Circleville Transfer Co., has managed 20 moves in the city and many more are listed for the coming week.

Few games offer the sport found in moving. Tooth brushes and the iodine bottle lose themselves in the lace curtain barrel, and the aspirin tablets spill in the cactus center piece. The housewife is generally the only member of the family who can intelligently referee the situation and explain how the stove poker landed in with the canned fruit and dad's house slippers were accidentally mixed with the garden tools.

Immediately following the moving season, the open season on landlords is declared for new wallpaper, painting, and the numerous other things that need "fixin'."

The game has usually been confined largely to the spring season in the past but the renewed spirit in Circleville's football season appears to have inspired some families to start moving "scrimmage."

ROBERT BATES, PRINTER, DIES AT HOME HERE

43 Years In Newspaper Business Ends Suddenly Saturday

ILL SINCE SEPT 12

Funeral Services to Be Monday at 3 P. M.

Robert H. Bates, 57, a printer in Circleville for 43 years, died at his home at 222 N. Court-st at 7:45 a. m. Saturday, following a week's illness.

Although Mr. Bates had been in failing health for several months, his death came as a shock to his friends in the city and to his fellow workers at The Herald, where he had been a linotype operator for the past seven years.

He became ill while working Sept. 13 and went home for a rest. He appeared to be making a slow recovery when death came.

Started Years Ago

"Bob" Bates started work in the printing business at the age of 15. For 35 years he was employed by his brother-in-law, the late Walter C. Darst in the publishing of the old Circleville Herald. In 1928 when Mr. Darst's paper, The Union-Herald, owned by C. C. Chapplear, and The Democrat and Watchman, operated by J. W. Johnson, were consolidated into the present Herald, he went to work as a linotype operator.

He also had his own print shop in the Odd Fellows building. This was formerly owned by the late Miss May Lowe.

Native of Indiana

Mr. Bates was born on March 6, 1878 at Evansville, Ind., the son of Thomas A. Bates, a Civil War veteran, and Emma Hackley Bates. His father was a native of Wolverhampton, England, and his mother's birthplace was in Bardonia, N. Y.

He was married on November 30, 1905, to Kathryn Palm, of this city, who survives him. Other survivors are two brothers, James T. Bates of Portsmouth and Alfred Bates of Bellevue, Washington; three sisters, Mrs. Walter C. Darst, W. Main-st, Mrs. John F. Small of Roanoke, Va., and Mrs. John K. Knowles, of Toledo.

Funeral services will be held at the home at 3 p. m. Monday with Rev. T. C. Harper of the United Brethren church officiating. Burial will follow in Forest cemetery under the direction of M. S. Rinehart.

WHEAT SIGN-UP MEETINGS START

"Sign-up" meetings for the new wheat program will be held in township school buildings Wednesday and Thursday from 7.30 to 10 p. m.

The township chairman will be in charge of the meetings to assist farmers in filling out the work sheets and answer questions concerning the new program.

Farmers interested in signing the new wheat contracts are urged to attend the meetings.

POLICE COURT QUIET

The police department after an exciting night Thursday was given an opportunity to rest Friday night.

William McCrady, chief of the department, reported no arrests and no calls. Four registered for the hobo room.

Mellon and Morgan Art Collections Can't Hold Candle to Herald Display

By PAT KIRWIN

They say Andrew Mellon, our erstwhile ex-secretary of the treasury, has an art collection in his palatial Pittsburgh home valued at $20,000,000.

And we're also told that Wall Streeter J. Pierpont Morgan has an art gallery in his diamond-studded living room in New York City which is worth $10,000,000.

But if you want to see an art gallery that is an art gallery come around to the editorial rooms of The Herald before October 1. There, on the wall, you'll see every well known world personality from Mickey Mouse to Mae West to Franklin Roosevelt to the Dionne quins.

spends 10 or 15 minutes gazing at this collection of portraits, which the editor has given the title, "rogue's gallery."

Everybody of any importance is there. This gallery thing was started by the writer two years ago. He got bawled out for pasting the first few pictures on the wall paper but as the collection was added to and as it began to take on an attractive appearance the "bawlings out" ceased.

We are forced to admit that conditions are not what they were a few years ago and the situation is becoming more and more serious. Stability in religion, morals, and politics is largely gone.

Religious fervor has abated in many places. That live, inspiring spiritual energy that once characterized the activities of the church is lost to a very large extent. Formality has taken its place. Lifeless churches, "a form of godliness denying the power thereof." The fire is largely gone from the sermon and song. What has become of the old time revival? Many of the church members at the movies and playing bridge. Souls by the tens of thousands plunge into dark eternity every week but no one seems to care.

How shall we stand at the judgment? How shall we give an account of our stewardship?

Go to church Sunday and listen to a gospel message!

Has the revelation which the enlarged telescope has brought to us made faith in God easier or harder? Some think the latter. Some think that is so insignificant a little world God is too large to be concerned about us. But the universe as material has no soul. Man is a child of God in whom He has breathed of His eternal Spirit. As his children, God as a loving Father has a supreme interest and care for us. More than ever we can believe in such a God. If we believe in a little God we may doubt as we come to fuller knowledge. If we believe in a Great God, great in character, our faith grows stronger with every unfolding of His creative work. There is nothing too great, nothing too small for our God. Learn concerning Him. Go to church tomorrow. Take a friend.

SPIRITUAL BANKRUPTCY

Oliver Wendall Holmes once said, "Just so sure as you keep drawing out your soul's currency without making new deposits, the next thing will be, 'No Funds.' Soul deposits and checks must more than just balance if we are to be the spiritually dynamic."

The worst bankrupt in the world is the man who has lost his enthusiasm, one who keeps drawing from his spiritual resources without subjecting himself to the sources of spiritual reinforcement and up-building. There are brakemen enough in the church to last for many years. What the church needs is more firemen.

A world campaign for universal peace was launched Sept. 6 the birthday of the late Jane Addams under the auspices of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom. The world campaign will circulate a "mandate of the people" calling on governments of the world "to use existing agencies for the settlement of present conflicts, to secure world disarmament and international agreement ending economic anarchy which spreads war. The mandate will be carried into 40 countries and will be presented by an international commission of men and women from all walks of life to heads of governments and to parliamentary bodies of the principal nations. Fifty million signatures are sought throughout the world; the goal for the United States has been set at 15 million. Miss Addams was founder and until her death, president of the Women's international league.

James—A Great Christian Leader

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Scripture—Acts 15:1-21; James 1:1-17.

By the Rev. Alvin E. Bell

And Alfred J. Buescher

On one occasion when Jesus was preaching his mother and brethren came desiring to speak to him. The names of these "brethren" are given as James, Joseph, Simon and Judas. John says of them, "Even his brethren did not believe on him."

After Jesus' resurrection James came to believe in him, and he became one of the leaders of the early Christian church at Jerusalem.

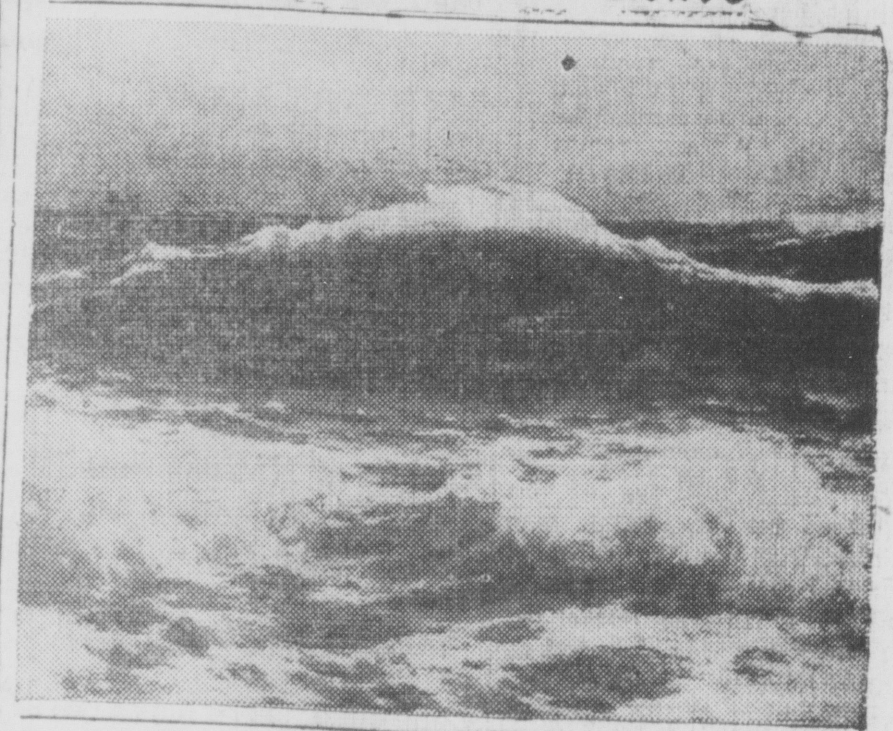

When the question arose as to how to receive gentiles into the church, the opinion of the church leaders at Jerusalem was sought. James was the one who answered. His answer was liberal and kindly toward these gentile Christians.

James wrote a letter to his fellow-believers which is one of the earliest of the New Testament books. It is a treatise on putting Christianity to use. "Faith without works is dead," James said.

(GOLDEN TEXT—James 1:12)

The Golden Text

000 PWA welfare building proposal, also faces defeat. Senate committee hearings on the proposal are to start Tuesday. Davey representatives have been contacting various leaders to gain support for the program seeking to build new state hospitals and institutions and repair old ones. Yesterday, the house received the resolution proposing a $40,000,000 bond issue for relief purposes for two years and referred the plan to the taxation committee. Under the resolution special taxes would be passed, not on real estate, to retire the bonds over a 10 year period.

PATTERN 5279

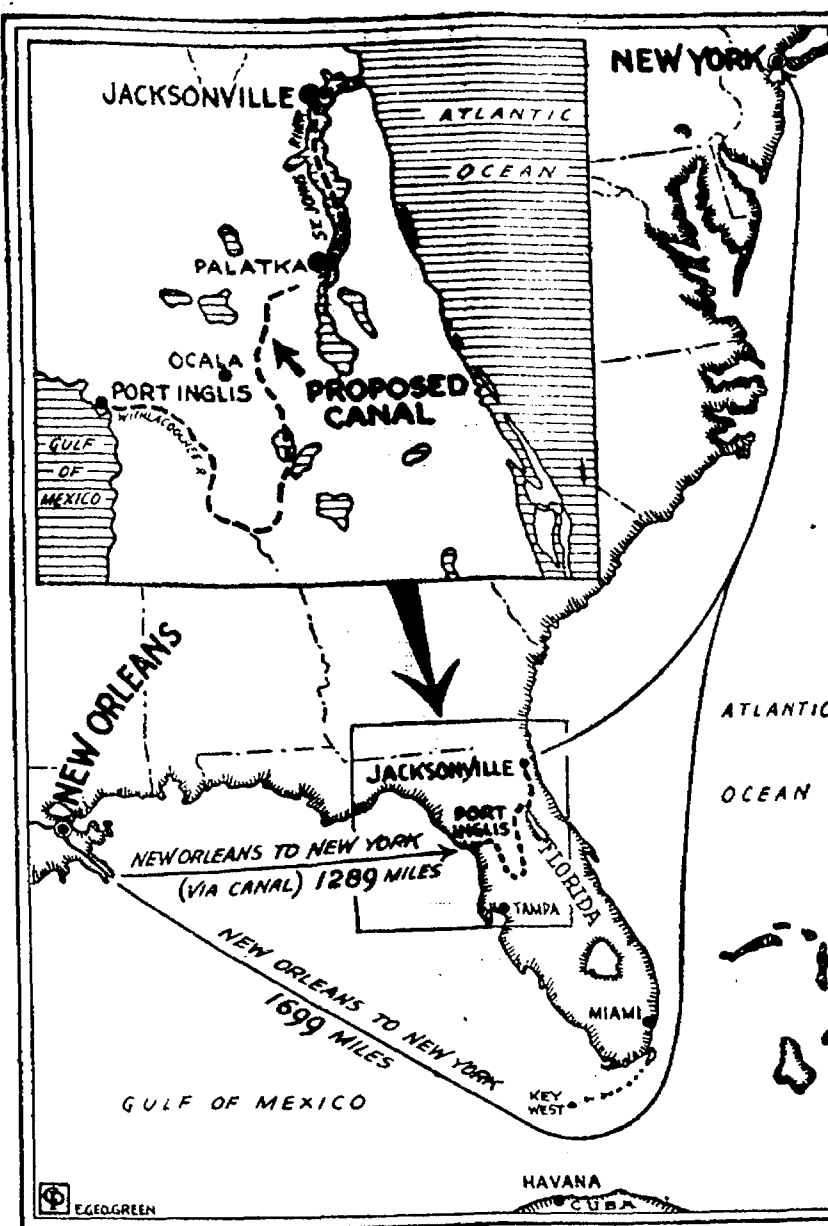

Do you know a good yarn? We're not referring to stories but to a smart, crocheted blouse which you can crochet yourself, and have ready for those first real cool Autumn days. Yarn, or colored string are ideal for bringing out the contrasting pattern of the blouse—its body is of a simple lacy stitch you'll know by heart quickly, and the yoke, waistband and cuffs are of a plain, ribbed stitch. Don't you love the bit of nautical lacing on either shoulder? You'll be delighted, too, with the way this blouse will dress up last year's suit, or "make" your new fall one. And if you want a two-piece dress made skirt pattern 5353 to go with it.

In pattern 5279 you will find complete instructions and charts for making the blouse shown, an illustration of it and of the stitches needed; material requirements, and color arrangements. Price of pattern 10c.

In pattern 5353 you will find complete instructions for making the skirt in sizes 16-18 and 38-40, an illustration of it and of the stitches needed; material requirements. Price of pattern 10c.

To obtain these patterns send 10 cents each (20 cents for both) in stamps or coin (coin preferred) to The Herald Household Arts Dept., 124 W. Main-st., Circleville, Ohio.

COURSE OF PROPOSED NEW CANAL

The war department has been allotted preliminary funds for surveying a canal across Florida, which will run from Jacksonville to Port Inglis, and shorten the distance between Liverpool and New Orleans by 1,000 miles per round trip. The canal will bring the Mississippi valley 1,000 miles closer to its European markets. Present plans call for a depth of only 30 feet. Naval authorities now are saying that the canal should be 45 feet deep, the depth of the Panama canal. Preliminary funds allotted by President Roosevelt amount to $5,000,000. Total cost is estimated at $100,000,000. Proponents of the canal say its chief advantage, however, would have been observed during the recent hurricane—it would provide a short route from the Gulf of Mexico to the entire east coast, omitting the dangerous Florida keys.

SHERIFF LEARNS NEMESIS KILLED

Raymond Withrow, Only Member of Gang Abducting Beckett, Slain in 1933

The sheriff's department wrote a finis this morning in the Miller Beckett kidnaping and robbery case of the fall of 1932.

Sheriff Charles Radcliff received a letter from D. T. Wolfe, Toledo chief of police, notifying him "Raymond Withrow, the only member of the gang not apprehended, was slain May 29, 1933 by the sheriff of Putnam-co, at Ottawa.

Description of Withrow had been sent to all sections of Ohio and other states and the sheriff is unable to explain why he was not notified sooner of the slaying. He plans to send a picture of Withrow to Putnam-co authorities for positive identification. Sheriff Radcliff has driven hundreds of miles tracing clues concerning the whereabouts of Withrow.

The letter states Withrow was using the name of Dave Gregor at the time he was killed.

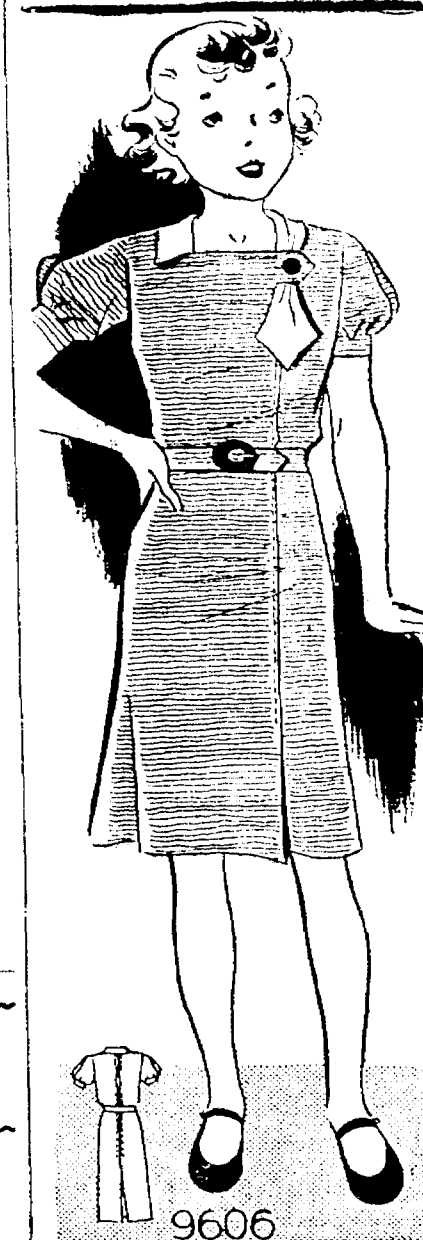

Three of the four members of the gang are now in state institutions. Charles McGraw and John Mullins were sentenced in the spring of 1933 to 10-25 years in the Ohio penitentiary for robbery and Herbert Bragg was given a reformatory sentence.

A metal shoe horn is handy to use in place of a trowel when digging in flower pots. The shape is the same as that of a trowel, and it does the same work in a smaller place.

Household Arts

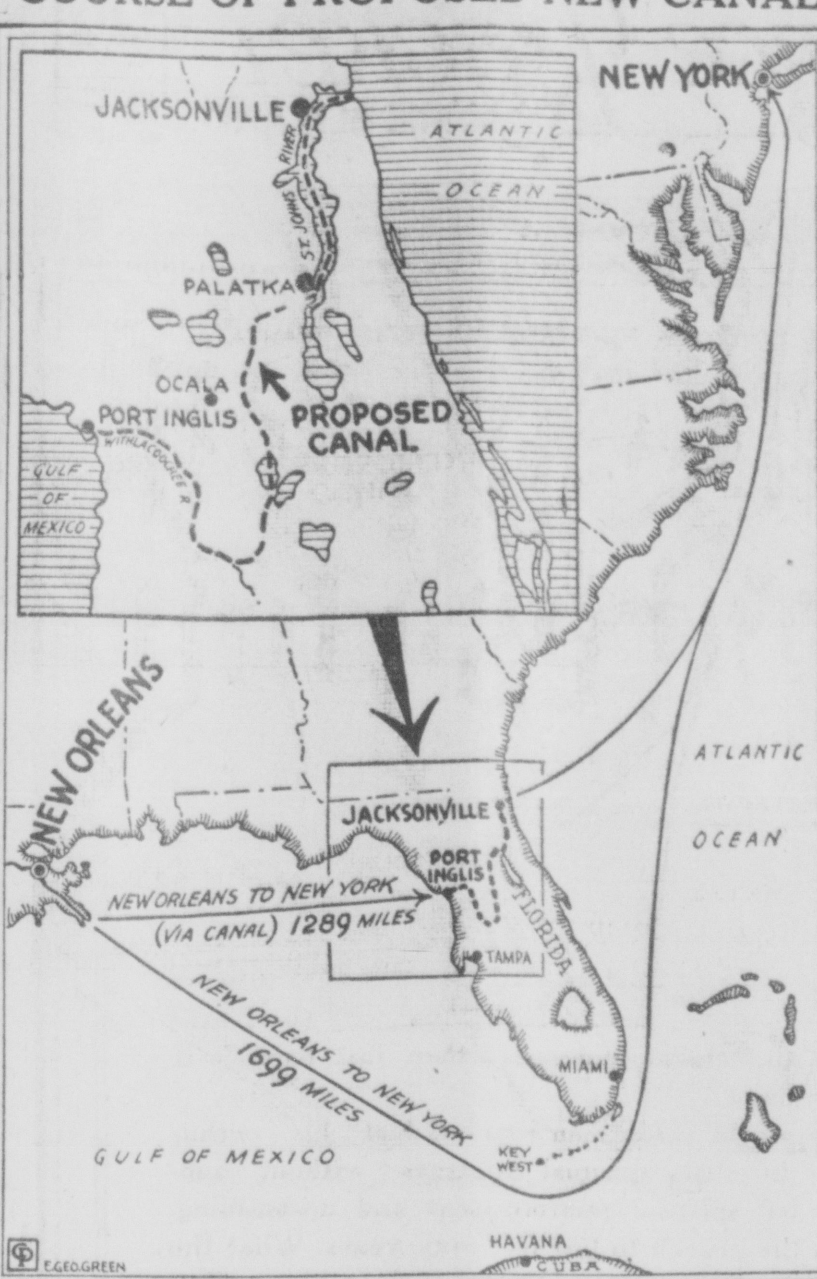

Do you know a good yarn? We're not referring to stories but to a smart, crocheted blouse which you can crochet yourself, and have ready for those first real cool Autumn days. Yarn, or colored string are ideal for bringing out the contrasting pattern of the blouse—its body is of a simple lacy stitch you'll know by heart quickly and the yoke, waistband and cuffs are of a plain, ribbed stitch. Don't you love the bit of nautical lacing on either shoulder? You'll be delighted, too, with the way this blouse will dress up last year's suit, or "make" your new fall one. And if you want a two-piece dress make skirt pattern 5353 to go with it.

In pattern 5279 you will find complete instructions and charts for making the blouse shown; an illustration of it and of the stitches needed; material requirements, and color arrangements. Price of pattern 10c.

In pattern 5353 you will find complete instructions for making the skirt in sizes 16-18 and 38-40; an illustration of it and of the stitches needed; material requirements. Price of pattern 10c.

To obtain these patterns send 10 cents each (20 cents for both) in stamps or coin (coin preferred) to The Herald Household Arts Dept., 124 W. Main-st., Circleville, Ohio.

COURSE OF PROPOSED NEW CANAL

The war department has been allotted preliminary funds for surveying a canal across Florida, which will run from Jacksonville to Port Inglis, and shorten the distance between Liverpool and New Orleans by 1,000 miles per round trip. The canal will bring the Mississippi valley 1,000 miles closer to its European markets. Present plans call for a depth of only 30 feet. Naval authorities now are saying that the canal should be 45 feet deep, the depth of the Panama canal. Preliminary funds allotted by President Roosevelt amount to $5,000,000. Total cost is estimated at $100,000,000. Proponents of the canal say its chief advantage, however, would have been observed during the recent hurricane—it would provide a short route from the Gulf of Mexico to the entire east coast, omitting the dangerous Florida keys.

SHERIFF LEARNS NEMESIS KILLED

Raymond Withrow, Only Member of Gang Abducting Beckett, Slain in 1933

The sheriff's department wrote a finis this morning in the Miller Beckett kidnaping and robbery case of the fall of 1932.

Sheriff Charles Radcliff received a letter from D. T. Wolfe, Toledo chief of police, notifying him Raymond Withrow, the only member of the gang not apprehended, was slain May 29, 1933 by the sheriff of Putnam-co, at Ottawa.

Description of Withrow had been sent to all sections of Ohio and other states and the sheriff is unable to explain why he was not notified sooner of the slaying. He plans to send a picture of Withrow to Putnam-co authorities for positive identification. Sheriff Radcliff has driven hundreds of miles tracing clues concerning the whereabouts of Withrow.

The letter states Withrow was using the name of Dave Gregor at the time he was killed.

Three of the four members of the gang are now in state institutions. Charles McGraw and John Mullins were sentenced in the spring of 1933 to 10-25 years in the Ohio penitentiary for robbery and Herbert Bragg was given a reformatory sentence.

Preserving The Last Of The Garden

Pickling, canning and preserving are the answers to how shall late garden products be kept from spoiling. Unusual ways to save these foods of fading summer are of interest to economy appreciating homemakers.

Tomato Jam, a common delicacy in grandmother's day, has returned to popularity. This quantity is a suitable amount for trial:

- Tomato Jam
- 5 lbs. ripe tomatoes
 - 5 C. brown sugar
 - 2 1/2 C. vinegar
 - 1 Tbsp. each whole cloves, allspice and stick cinnamon
 - 3 C. seedless raisins

Cut tomatoes in pieces after peeling. Add sugar and vinegar, and spices tied in cheesecloth. Boil slowly for 2 hours. Add raisins, chopped. Boil 1 hour longer. Remove spices and pour into sterilized jars and seal.

Tomatoes contribute to the richness of flavors for heavy winter meals. Chili sauce, creole sauce, tomato juice, Spanish tomatoes, tomato pickles are tasty ways to save tomatoes for future use. Here is a recipe for Spanish Tomatoes:

- Spanish Tomatoes
- 24 green tomatoes, sliced
 - 1 large onion
 - 2 green peppers
 - 3/4 C. salt
 - 1 Tbsp. peppercorns
 - 1 Tbsp. mustard seed
 - 1 C. brown sugar
 - 2 qt. vinegar

Alternate layers of sliced tomatoes with layers of sliced onion and chopped green peppers in a large crock, and sprinkle each layer with salt. Let stand 24 hours, then drain. Put the vegetables in a preserving-kettle, add the spices and sugar, and cover with the vinegar. Cook gently for 45 minutes. Pack in clean, hot jars and seal.

Relishes add an appetizing tang to other foods and they use a mixture of vegetables. Chow-chow, piccalille, and chutneys—what taste delights they supply!

For menus of macaroni, spaghetti, and rice, the sweet pickle varieties are blended. Use spiced peaches, pears or tiny spiced apples for tempting morsels. Spiced grapes, spiced plums or grape catchup have singular flavors and supply delicious piquancy for the appetite.

"BOB" BATES

THERE are lumps in the throats of all Herald employees today and no matter how hard we swallow, they won't go down. They just stick there, because "Bob" Bates, the veteran member of our staff, is gone and we just can't realize that it's true.

When "Bob" left the office a week ago Friday, not one of us thought that he was taking his last walk home. But that's life... so uncertain always....

We all grew to love "Bob" because he had a personality which is so rare in a newspaper shop. Everybody was his friend, because he never did anything to gain the enmity of a fellow worker. During the last few months we all knew that he was feeling miserable but with all of this, he bore up under his suffering with fortitude and grit and kept on doing his reliable work.

"Bob" had been around Circleville newspaper offices for 43 years, 36 of which were spent with his brother-in-law, the late Walter C. Darst, and the last seven with The Herald. This experience gave to his work a quality of accuracy which only veterans possess.

The ironical touch of Bob's sudden death is that in two weeks The Herald would have been moved in its new, more comfortable quarters in the Bremer building and he would have had only a few steps to walk to his work each morning.

Every member of The Herald staff extends his deep, sincere sympathy to Mrs. Bates.

IN THE ROMAN TRADITION

IT is told of an orator of ancient Rome that every speech he delivered on the public rostrum, no matter what the subject, would wind up with the exclamation: "Carthage must be destroyed!"

Il Duce, accordingly, must be credited with adhering to the tradition of the Caesars, when, on every conceivable occasion, he takes occasion to remind the world of Ethiopia's barbarism. To Mussolini, the impending war is no mere matter of economic exploitation or colonial expansion. "The Abyssinians," he bravely declares, "must be civilized."

Now, if civilization is the real Italian objective, why not take the matter up with the League of Nations and suggest a mild international protectorate for the spread of education, culture and general enlightenment?

To ask the question is to emphasize the sheer hypocrisy of Il Duce's position. The Italian dictator is not as candid as were his imperialistic predecessors. If he were, he would drop the idealistic misrepresentation by simply observing at the slightest provocation: "Ethiopia must be destroyed."

LET RUMMIES LAUGH

OLD SOAKS will get a big kick out of efforts of the W. C. T. U. to popularize non-alcoholic drinks like rhubarb punch, blackberry cup, November chill and huckleberry grin. But, despite all evidences of bacchanalian risibility, there is something to be said for this temperate crusade.

Prior to the late noble experiment, the W. C. T. U. had done a great deal of significant work along lines of temperance education. It was making real headway in the direction of nationwide moderation. Under its organized influence, restraint and self-control were coming to be recognized as meritorious moral ideals.

This sensible movement was halted with the advent of federal prohibition. An attempt was made to substitute legal compulsion for educational development, and the result was that many Americans promptly relapsed into a state of uncontrollable dissipation. Even young people began demanding bathtub gin, and turned up their noses at less potent beverages.

In setting out to recover lost ground through popularization of drinks which are at once pleasant and harmless, the W. C. T. U. resumes a campaign that can not be brushed aside with an outburst of leering laughter.

It can be well imagined that Hans Luthed, German ambassador to the United States, is beginning to regret the spin of the diplomatic wheel that sent him to this country. The German government has burned up the cables so rapidly in protesting against American antagonism that the poor fellow is unable to properly enjoy his summer vacation.

The only beginners who really expect to begin at the top are relatives of the boss and authors.

FROM EDINBURGH UNIVERSITY

THE FOLLOWING double-dummy problem is sufficiently difficult to cause a fellow of Scotland's great university to ask if it is possible to make a grand slam to clubs against the best possible subsequent defense. The opening lead is the J of diamonds. The declarer gives no hint as to bidding. Try making a grand slam before reading how it may be accomplished.

Win the diamond trick with dummy's K. Discard declarer's third spade, to prepare for either spade or heart defense. Lead both of dummy's clubs. Win the fourth trick by having East ruff dummy's lowest diamond. South's best defense is to discard his jettiest diamond on the second lead of dummy's trumps. Thereafter South cannot allow his hand to discard a diamond before dummy does, or he will enable declarer to establish that suit in dummy and solve East's problem for him.

The next play by declarer either enables him to win the grand slam or gives his chance to do so. Lead of clubs gives him a chance to do so. Lead of diamonds gives him a chance to do so. Lead of hearts gives him a chance to do so. Lead of spades gives him a chance to do so.

The Romance Packet
by MARIE BLIZARD

READ THIS FIRST:
On her twenty-fourth birthday, Carol Kennedy, coming into a vast fortune, suddenly announces to her relatives that she is going to her old home in Connecticut, where she has lived as an orphan, to marry to freedom. Cousin Kathy and her fiance, W. Owen, have been the first to depart from the "stagnant" birthday dinner for something better. (NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER I
"DON'T LOOK so glum, Owen. It was a ghastly business, slipping through that family dinner table and being at Auntie's." Kathy reached for her fiance's hand in the dim recesses of the taxicab.
"It wasn't the dinner, dear, it's the party at the next party I'm worried about; I'm operating in the morning." He stifled a tired sigh.
"Darling, please forget that," she wheedled. "We must go to parties. Isn't that where you meet most of the people who become your patients?"
"Not exactly." He looked fondly at Kathy. She loved parties and he loved her. Undoubtedly when they were married Kathy would change. A tiny cloud of doubt rose in his mind and his arm tightened about her.
"Do parties mean so much to you, Kathy?"
"Practically everything, Owen. And some day I'm going to give the most wonderful parties in New York. I'll have the whole Social Register clamoring to get to my parties and then to be your patients." She looked at him for his approval.
When he didn't speak, she went on:
"I can promise you one thing, we won't have to attend many dinners like that one tonight. Really, they're only held on family birthdays."
"That's quite all right. It was a noble dinner," Owen thought of the pleasant and Napoleon brandy.
Kathy shivered in her fur wrap. "It takes more than old wine to break through that family. They had poor old Carol on the spot. Jolly birthday party for her."
"I felt a little sorry for her," he said thoughtfully.
"I do, too, darling, but why? Carol has no more spirit than a jellyfish and she has no more money. If she can't get out from under that's her fault. Heaven only knows I've done everything I could for her."
"Have you, Kathy?"
Sharpness lent an edge to her answer: "Certainly I have. What did you expect me to have done?"
"I wasn't reflecting on anything you might do, darling. I merely thought that there is so much life and gaiety about you that Carol would be fortunate to bask in its reflection."
Kathy was suspicious that Owen had turned a deeper thought into a compliment.
"Carol and I have always been different. She was a good little girl and her face was never dirty and she never 'sassed her maw.' She grew up the same way."
"What was her mother like, Kathy?" Owen was interested.
"There you go, being psychological again," Kathy sighed and continued. "Her father died when Carol was 13 and her mother promptly became a nervous wreck. They had nurse after nurse and traveled all over the world but it was Carol who did the nursing."
"It was 'where's mother's rug' and 'read to mother' and 'fetch this and that' for all the rest of the years."
"You know that sort of life isn't likely to foster any kick-back spirit, but she miss her mother very much."
"Oh, properly enough. Honestly, Owen, I did my best but she simply turned down all my invitations politely and firmly. I don't think she likes things like that."
"I don't think that's likely. I think someone should take her in hand and find a few interests for her."

Kathy's voice was hard. "Are you planning to do that, Owen?"
"No, my dear, I expect you'll be as much as I can handle."
Mollified, she answered, "I will be a hand but it's because I think you can handle me that I'm going to marry you."
"Is that the only reason?" He laid his cheek beside her own soft one.
She drew away a little and her words came slowly: "No, of course not, dear. I... I suppose I love you."
"You suppose so? Don't you know?"
"Don't be silly, darling." She laughed.
"Kathy," he said after a silence. "Have you ever met anyone else?"
She did not answer immediately. Their taxi was turning into Park Avenue. Kathy would take her that question as they passed the apartment where Gary Chandler lived.

Joe Kennedy, Like Walker, Balks At Filling Farley Shoes

WASHINGTON—It looks as if another close pal of the President's has turned him down on the job of filling Jim Farley's shoes as Postmaster General. He is genial Joseph P. Kennedy, about to retire as chairman of the Securities Exchange Commission. Roosevelt turned to Joe after Frank Walker felt skittish about the ineffect of the Post Office. Kennedy, on the other hand, considers the job too dull. However, Roosevelt may prevail upon one of them.

Notwithstanding their bitter differences on legal and economic issues, the nine members of the Supreme Court seem to trust each other personally. Their wardrobe cabinets in the roiling room of the new court structure are without locks... Inner circle New Dealers are telling friends that one of the most significant points of the President's "breathless spell" letter to publisher Roy Howard was almost completely overlooked. They say the letter contained an implied, but very pointed, warning to big business that the demand for heavier taxes on large corporations will be renewed. The caustic expression "sterile accumulations" used by the President in referring to corporate surpluses is considered of tell-tale significance.

The American Legion meeting in St. Louis next week will reaffirm overwhelmingly its 1934 demand for immediate payment of the bonus. However, the veterans will turn thumbs down on proposals to link the bonus with currency-inflation. Over thirty-five state departments of the Legion have rejected it in favor of the Legion-backed Wilson bill, which would raise the needed money by a special bond issue... College Student Problems Laid to Gland Trouble

Now we examine his glands. The endocrine glands. I have been reading an article on "Endocrinology and the Problem College Student," by Dr. John Andre and sold out to the British.

Dr. Clendenning

Harry J. Denjamin. The idea, of course, is that when a student displays some irregularity of conduct or inability to succeed in class work, he is turned over to the specialist, who examines his ductless glands. "An important group of students to which special attention has been paid are those in whom a discrepancy exists between the results of their intelligence tests and the results of their school work. Occasionally a definite thyroid or pituitary, or combined deficiency of both glands was revealed. In several cases treatment tending to augment the work of these glands and improve their function had a striking result, improving the quality of the patient's work in college. Naturally the suggestion that goes with such treatment may play a large part in the result; but frequent changes in physical manifestations of glandular function constitutes evidence that an actual endocrine change has been accomplished."

"The Abyssinians," he bravely declares, "must be civilized."

Now, if civilization is the real Italian objective, why not take the matter up with the League of Nations and suggest a mild international protectorate for the spread of education, culture and general enlightenment?

To ask the question is to emphasize the sheer hypocrisy of Duce's position. The Italian dictator is not as candid as were his imperialistic predecessors. If he were, he would drop the idealistic misrepresentation by simply observing at the slightest provocation: "Ethiopia must be destroyed."

LET RUMMIES LAUGH

OLD SOAKS will get a big kick out of efforts of the W. C. T. U. to popularize non-alcoholic drinks like rhubarb punch, blackberry cup, November chill and huckleberry grin. But, despite all evidences of bacchanalian risibility, there is something to be said for this temperate crusade.

Prior to the late noble experiment, the W. C. T. U. had done a great deal of significant work along lines of temperance education. It was making real headway in the direction of nationwide moderation. Under its organized influence, restraint and self-control were coming to be recognized as meritorious moral ideals.

This sensible movement was halted with the advent of federal prohibition. An attempt was made to substitute legal compulsion for educational development, and the result was that many Americans promptly relapsed into a state of uncontrollable dissipation. Even young people began demanding bathtub gin, and turned up their noses at less potent beverages.

In setting out to recover lost ground through popularization of drinks which are at once pleasant and harmless, the W. C. T. U. resumes a campaign that can not be brushed aside with an outburst of leering laughter.

It can be well imagined that Hans Luthed, German ambassador to the United States, is beginning to regret the spin of the diplomatic wheel that sent him to this country. The German government has burned up the cables so rapidly in protesting against American antagonism that the poor fellow is unable to properly enjoy his summer vacation.

The only beginners who really expect to begin at the top are relatives of the boss and authors.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By E. V. SHEPARD, Famous Bridge Teacher

FROM EDINBURGH UNIVERSITY

THE FOLLOWING double-dummy problem is sufficiently difficult to cause a fellow of Scotland's great university to ask if it is possible to make a grand slam at clubs against the best possible subsequent defense. The opening lead is the J of diamonds. The inquirer gives no hint as to bidding. Try making a grand slam before reading how it may be accomplished.

Win the diamond trick with dummy's K. Discard declarer's third heart defense, to prepare for either spade or heart defense. Lead both of dummy's clubs. Win the fourth trick by having East ruff dummy's lowest diamond. South's best defense is to discard his lowest diamond on the second lead of dummy's trumps. Thereafter South cannot allow his hand to discard a diamond before dummy does, or he will enable declarer to establish that suit in dummy and solve East's problem for him.

The next play by declarer either enables him to win the grand slam or ruins his chance to do so. Lead a trump. South now must let 23 either a spade or a heart, if he already has let go a diamond. If he has not yet let go a card of his longest suit he may do so now. In either event declarer must keep leading trumps until South discards a major suit card. Then East must momentarily stop leading trumps. Dummy's discard must be from the major suit from which South first discards.

Suppose that South discarded his extra diamond on the second trump lead, and that South's discard is a spade, when East leads a trump at the fifth trick. Discard a spade from dummy. North may as well do the same. Lead the major suit from which South and dummy have discarded. Win with dummy's Ace. Declarer must discard from the suit not yet led. Have him let go a heart. Lead and ruff a diamond. All players are now down to 5 cards. Lead a trump. South will let go a heart. Dummy will discard his last card of the major suit already led. North will let go a spade. Lead another trump. South will hold his spade and good diamond. Let go a heart from dummy. The three cards of each player will be as shown below:

Lead declarer's last trump. Discard from dummy's red suit held by South. No matter what North holds declarer must win the remaining tricks and make his grand slam.

The Romance Racket

MARIE BLIZARD

READ THIS FIRST:

On her twenty-fourth birthday Carol Kennedy, coming into a vast fortune, suddenly announces to her relatives that she is giving up her old home in Connecticut, where she has lived as an orphan, to move to New York to find happiness and freedom. Cousin Kathy and her fiance, W. Owen O'Neil, have been the first to depart from the "stuffy" birthday dinner for some thing quiet. (NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 2

"DON'T LOOK so glum, Owen. It was a ghastly business sitting through that family dinner but I'll be gay at Adele's." Kathy reached for her fiance's hand in the dim recess of the taxi cab.

"It wasn't the dinner, dear, it's the gaiety at the next party I'm worried about; I'm operating in the morning."

"He stifled a tired sigh. 'Darling, please forget about that,' she wheedled. 'We must go to parties. Isn't that where you meet most of the people who become your patients?'"

"Not exactly." He looked tenderly at Kathy. She loved parties and he loved her. Undoubtedly when they were married Kathy would change. A tiny cloud of doubt rose in his mind and his arm tightened about her.

"Do parties mean so much to you, Kathy?"

"Practically everything, Owen. And some day I'm going to give the most wonderful parties in New York. I'll have the whole Social Register clamoring to get to my parties and then to be your patients." She looked at him for his approval.

When he didn't speak, she went on: "I can promise you one thing, we won't have to attend many dinners like that one tonight. Really, they're only held on family birthdays."

"That's quite all right. It was a noble dinner." Owen thought of the pheasant and Napoleon brandy.

Kathy shivered in her genuine wine. "It takes more than old wine to break through that family. They had poor old Carol on the spot. Jolly birthday party for her."

"I felt a little sorry for her," he said thoughtfully.

"I do, too, darling, but why? Carol has no more spirit than a jellyfish and she has oodles of money. If she can't get out from under that's her fault. Heaven only knows I've done everything I could for her."

"Have you, Kathy?"

Sharpness lent an edge to her answer: "Certainly I have. What did you expect me to have done?"

"I wasn't reflecting on anything you might do, darling. I merely thought that there is so much life and gaiety about you that Carol would be fortunate to bask in its reflection."

Kathy was suspicious that Owen had turned a deeper thought into a compliment.

"Carol and I have always been different. She was a good little girl and her face was never dirty and she never 'sassed her' maw. She grew up the same way."

"What was her mother like, Kathy?" Owen was interested.

"There you go, being psychological again," Kathy sighed and continued. "Her father died when Carol was 10 and her mother promptly became a nervous wreck. They had nurse after nurse and traveled all over the world but it was Carol who did the nursing."

"It was 'where's mother's rug' and 'read to mother' and 'fetch mother this and that' for all the rest of the years."

"You know that sort of life isn't likely to foster any kick-back spirit. Did she miss her mother very much?"

"Oh, properly enough. Honestly, Owen, I did my best but she simply turned down all my invitations politely and firmly. I don't think she likes things like that."

"I don't think that's likely. I think

"Do parties mean so much to you, Kathy?"

someone should take her in hand and find a few interests for her."

Kathy's voice was hard: "Are you planning to do that, Owen?"

"No, my dear, I expect you'll be as much as I can handle."

Mollified, she answered, "I will be a handful but it's because I think you can handle me that I'm going to marry you."

"Is that the only reason?" He laid his cheek beside her own soft one. She drew away a little and her words came slowly: "No, of course not, dear. I... I suppose I love you."

"You suppose so? Don't you know?"

"Don't be silly, darling." She laughed.

"Kathy," he said after a silence, "Have you ever met anyone else...?"

She did not answer immediately. Their taxi was turning into Park avenue. Owen would ask her that question as they passed the apartment where Gary Randall lived!

Unconsciously she turned a little to see if the windows were lighted but she saw that they were not.

"Of course, there isn't anyone else I'm going to marry you, aren't I?"

"When, Kathy?"

"Soon, darling, when the season is over and in the meantime I'll want to do loads of things about my business and the decorators and the apartment."

"Let's do it tomorrow, Kathy. Let's slip down to city hall and marry."

"You're operating tomorrow," she said triumphantly.

"We could be married at noon."

"Yes, and start our married life with you rushing back to the hospital and leaving me alone. What am I to do, darling, when we're married and all your time belongs to your patients?"

"I'll always come home to you. Is it necessary for wives to have more than that?" he asked seriously.

"I'm afraid it is." The bantering note had left his voice.

"You couldn't possibly know because you're not a wife yet," she spoke with a lightness he did not feel.

"Owen, I don't want to be the kind of a wife who has to have other men to take her to parties," she looked at him for support.

"Then it will not be necessary."

She looked out the window and in the silence she began to be afraid. Of course, she cared for Owen. She had been impressed with him from that first moment when she had met him at a committee meeting. He was so distingue, so different from the male parasites in her own set.

Sometimes the parasites were interesting. They made a girl feel interesting. She loved the flirtations, the unexpected little attentions, the intimate luncheons, the compliments, the air of excitement to come. When she was married to Owen, there would be no more. And there would be no more Gary.

She must change. She must be more—yes more like Carol. She smiled to herself and held her cigarette up for Owen to light.

"It was sweet of you, darling, to send her flowers," she said to him. "Flowers?" Owen lost in his own thoughts had forgotten about Carol.

"Carol's flowers. She looked almost pretty as she thanked you for them."

"Oh, those." He dismissed them. "One night, a lady's birthday... er... a lady's birthday... beautiful. You shall have beautiful pearls, Kathy."

What her thumb touched the square-cut emerald on her engagement finger. Her mind flew to the little diamond pin Gary had given her. She dared not wear it. It wasn't that she loved Gary. She found him exciting and important.

Owen said: "What was she to do?"

"She shivered slightly."

"Cold, dear?" Tenderly he drew her hand over her forehead.

There was a drawing up before the brightly lighted foyer of the apartment where the Mechanisms were giving their party.

"It's just beginning, Owen. See how many cars there are ahead of ours. They're starting early; it's hardly midnight," Kathy said to Owen.

"I wonder what Carol's doing?" Owen spoke a kindly thought aloud.

Kathy looked at him sharply and dismissed jealousy from her mind. One couldn't be jealous of poor, plain Cousin Carol.

"Nothing, dear doctor, nothing. She never does do anything but bury her nose in a book. She's undoubtedly sleeping the sleep of the pure, dreaming nice little classical dreams. Give me my bag, pet, I must look quite a wreck."

But Carol was not sleeping and the dreams she was dreaming were destined to leave their mark on all their lives.

Joe Kennedy, Like Walker, Balks At Filling Farley Shoes

WASHINGTON—It looks as if another close pal of the President's has turned him down on the job of filling Jim Farley's shoes as Postmaster General. He is genial Joseph P. Kennedy, about to retire as chairman of the Securities Exchange Commission. Roosevelt turned to Joe after Frank Walker felt skittish about the linchpin of the Post Office. Kennedy, on the other hand, considers the job too dull. However, Roosevelt may prevail upon one of them.

Notwithstanding their bitter differences on legal and economic issues, the nine members of the Supreme Court seem to trust each other personally. Their wardrobe cabinets in the robing room of the new court structure are without locks... Inner circle New Dealers are telling friends that one of the most significant points of the President's "breathing spell" letter to publisher Roy Howard was almost completely overlooked. They say the letter contained an implied, but very pointed, warning to big business that the demand for heavier taxes on large corporations will be renewed. The caustic expression "sterile accumulations" used by the President in referring to corporation surpluses is considered of tell-tale significance.

Anti-Inflation

The American Legion meeting in St. Louis next week will reaffirm overwhelmingly its 1934 demand for immediate payment of the bonus. However, the veterans will turn thumbs down on proposals to link the bonus with currency-inflation. Representative Wright Patman's greenback bonus-paying bill, passed by Congress this year, is slated for a vigorous thumping. Over thirty-five state departments of the Legion have rejected it in favor of the Legion-backed Vinson bill, which would raise the needed money by a special bond issue... So heavy has been the demand for the special Boulder Dam stamp, to be issued September 28, that the mail on that day from Boulder City, Nev., is expected to exceed New York City's... Senate liberals, aroused over the action of Governor Paul

McNutt, a former law professor who privately fancies himself a future Democratic presidential possibility, finally has eased the rigors of his bayonet-government, although he has not withdrawn his order.

Cuban Tyranny

The State Department has been able to bring back prosperity to Cuba, but not to release political prisoners. College Student Problems Laid to Gland Trouble

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

IN THE OLD days when a fellow heaved his uncle on the head with an ax, or drained the baby's milk bottle, it was put down to a sort of general mismanagement of the gland system.

Now we examine his glands. The endocrine glands, which are quite straight in his head.

Now we examine his glands. The endocrine glands, which are quite straight in his head.

I have been reading an article on "Endocrinology and the Problem College Student," by Dr. John Andre and sold out to the British.

the same idea presented to them. For instance, one of the railroads has a consulting endocrinologist, and, according to the report, has provided health of their employees, but also to preserve and increase their individual efficiency.

Dr. Benjamin is conservative in his evaluation of results, our present knowledge being what it is, and properly so. It all looks very nice on paper, but I don't know.

Not that I doubt the influence of the ductless glands on life, but I doubt whether we know enough about them yet to make such fine-sounding discriminations. Certainly our ability to correct their disorders is far too small to found a new social structure on.

It sounds fine to read that a "definite thyroid or pituitary or combined deficiency was revealed," but only those who have tried to establish a diagnosis in frank and well-marked cases know how hard that is.

It's too bad, for it's a beautiful idea. If we could find out the reason for mental and character maladjustment on the basis of glands, and had means to correct them, think what we could do to this ugly old world.

Annual endocrinologic examination of congress might really solve the problem.

Heaven knows how we could influence literature. Only for the better, I should think. "Who is engaging at the present moment in preserving notes on the internal secretions of Einstein?" Who is investigating the endocrine glands of Paul Vallery?

asks Andre Manrois. Well, there is a diabetic society in London largely made up of literary men—H. G. Wells and Hugh Walpole belong to it, I understand, and diabetes is an endocrine disease. Is literature lack of insulin? Do we not read that Shakespeare's "sugared sonnets" circulated among his private friends?

TIGERS WIN FIRST GRIDIRON GAME SINCE 1932, 6 TO 0

About This And That In Many Sports

Holy Rosary Tough.
The work of the Red and Black Tiger next Friday is cut out—It's going to be tough—Holy Rosary. Tiger foe, knocks off Hillsboro Friday evening 7-0 under the lights of the Hillsboro field—The Columbus Irish, always followed by a strong aggregation, is undefeated from last year—"Twould be mighty nice to send them back home on the short end of the count ***

Westerville Whipped
Other Central Buckeye league teams did nobly in Friday tilts; Bexley trimmed Columbus North, 12 to 6; Grandview won from Gahanna, 12 to 0, but Marysville lost to Kenton, 13 to 2, and Westerville took an unexpected crack on the chin at the hands of the Upper Arlington team, 26 to 0—May be the dry-town athletes aren't so tough as one would think after seeing them hold Central, 6-6 ***

Some other scores:
Chillicothe ran away from Waverly 80 to 0; Wilmington 28-0 over Columbus South; Aquinas 25, Washington C. H. 0; Columbus Central 6, Lancaster 0; Urbana 58; Manchester 0; Columbus East 7; Middletown 6; Hamilton 48; Cincinnati Hartwell 0 ***

Gives Own Belt
Here's just one example to show what Coach Jack Landrum thinks of his boys—When Johnny McGinnis dressed Friday his trouser straps were not big enough for his belt—Landrum took his belt from his trousers and gave it to the center ***

New Jerseys Late
It was fortunate that new jerseys ordered two weeks ago did not arrive for Friday's tilt—They are a real bright crimson, the same color nearly that Groveport wore—They were new black pants and had their headgears painted white—Next Friday they'll look mighty nice in their new jerseys. ***

Who'll Win Fight?
Who is going to win the big fight Tuesday? is a predominant question—despite other opinions, Joe Louis might end the fight with one blow, you never can tell—The clamor for ducats is increasing and a million dollar gate is assured. ***

Mourning Doves
Mourning doves subsist chiefly on seeds, but bird lovers say that the service they perform is almost equal to that of the insectivorous species. The season for feeding their young comes opportunely, says the Indianapolis News, as they consume great quantities of weed seeds. Such grain as they eat is mostly waste in stubble fields. The United States Department of Agriculture, through its biological survey, has classified the dove as one of the useful birds and while it is shot in the South as a game bird, it is protected in most of the states and Canada. ***

Baer Subject of Criticism Despite Intense Training

SPECULATOR, N. Y., Sept. 21.—The credit due to a man of greatness will be Max Baer's if he succeeds in winning over Joe Louis at Yankee stadium on Tuesday night.
Few men in ring history have been so pelted by adverse criticism as the former heavyweight champion in recent weeks of training here. Sport experts from far and wide who viewed Max in his preparatory moves have voiced their disapproval of his ability, many predicting that Louis will be witnessed in the role of executioner.
What has Baer's mental reaction been to all this? Perhaps it is a question. At any rate, it is safe to say that Baer, being human, has not been entirely able to

RIGHTMIRE AND SCHMIDT PLEASED WITH OHIO STATE GRID PRACTICE

President George W. Rightmire of Ohio State University took time out from preparations for a record freshman class to attend the opening football practice.
This photo of President Rightmire, Coach Francis A. Schmidt, and Captain Gomer Jones indicates that the practice was a very satisfactory affair.
No novice at athletics, the university president understands and enjoys the sport. During his student days in the 1890's, he was a member of the football squad and a track man of no little ability.
Later he was graduate manager of athletics at Ohio State. When Ohio State entered the Western Conference, Mr. Rightmire became the first president of the university's board of control for athletics. He also served for six years as treasurer of the athletics association.

BUCKEYE VARSITY IN 39-0 VICTORY

COLUMBUS, Sept. 21.—Ohio State's gridlers rested, and in some cases recuperated, today after an intense drill yesterday capped off with a scrimmage between the Varsity and Scrubs.
Needless to say, the Varsity marched through, over and around the hapless second-stringers for a 39-0 triumph. Also needless to say, passes of the Schmidt type floated through the air the majority of the afternoon.

Coming as close to a starting lineup as he probably will before the season's inauguration against Kentucky two weeks hence, Coach Francis Schmidt gave the backfield "nod" to Pincura, quarterback, Dick Heekin and Frank Boucher at the halves and Johnny Kabealo at fullback.

Kabealo opened the scoring by dashing 21 yards with the pigskin in the first quarter after receiving a pass. Scores then came fast and in large quantities.
The climax of the scrimmage probably was a successful 52-yard heave, Wasylik to Bettridge, for the third touchdown.

A throng of 3500 "faithful" watched the Irish roll over the Kentuckians at will.
Andrew Jackson was the first territorial governor of Florida, serving in 1821-1822.

'TEEING OFF'

Someone (Vattier to you) uses two kinds of grips, one for irons and one for woods, and both wrong—His locker room pals call them the interhooking and inter-slinging grips.
Miss Neuding, watching a match at the club: "I've followed them for 12 holes and haven't seen them play a shot yet."
"Yes," said Miss Charlotte Bell, but its good for taking off weight.

Tom Brunner proudly: "I once made a four myself on this hole."
"What with, a brassie?" asked John Ryan.

Mrs. Robert Musser's first round with the pro: "I don't see what fun he has, he plays so mechanically."
A foursome following the Fussys: "Have they putted yet?" "No, they're still picking crab grass."

Latest face on the lesson tee: Mrs. Bishop Given.
The golf bug has finally bitten Elmer Clifton.

Growth of Fishes
The growth of fishes probably decelerates with age, but under favorable circumstances it never stops. If fish growth were shown on a graph, the weight curve would show a steady upward line, but the length curve would ascend rapidly at first, then almost straighten out. That is because as the fish grows large, the corresponding increase in length tends to make the weight increase rather constant. — Detroit Free Press.

CINCINNATI REDS TEST ST. LOUIS

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Sept. 21.—The Cincinnati Reds rolled into town today prepared not only to battle the world's champion Cardinals but also a jinx which has trailed them through the eight previous games played here this season.

Of the eight contests, the Reds have succeeded in winning — exactly none.

St. Louis, considered to have a wonderful opportunity to gain valuable ground on the Chicago Cubs during the three-game Reds series, are expected to start either Hallahan or Paul Dean against Tony Freitas today in an effort to get off to a flying start.

The Welland Canal
The Welland canal, from Port Colborne on Lake Erie to Port Weller is about 25 miles long. The St. Lawrence River, from Lake Ontario to the Gulf is 220 miles. The whole St. Lawrence river system, from the source of the St. Louis in Minnesota, is about 2,200 miles. Carrying the "Coach"
Newcastle is a center of the British coal trade, and a great port for the shipping of it. To "carry coals to Newcastle" is a waste of labor, a futile, or unnecessary effort, an effort to supply a need already well supplied. The phrase is of Seventeenth century origin, or perhaps older. But similar proverbs exist in many languages. There is one in French about "carrying water to the river." Ancient Greece has one about taking coals to Athens—Athenian coins being stamped with the owl; and an Oriental poet speaks of "importing pepper to Hiddugan." — Cleveland Plain Dealer.

62-Yard Drive Wins Margin

Groveport Outscores Tigers in First Downs But Breaks Keep Invaders From Coveted Stripe; Friley Goes Over From 8-Yard Mark in Second Session

This story should almost rate page 1 because the last time we had an opportunity to pound this typewriter concerning a football victory was back in 1932 when the Red and Black came home from Marysville with a 13-12 margin. Not since that date until Friday, Sept. 20, 1935 did the Tigers and Circleville taste the delicious morsel of victory.
Groveport came here Friday and went back home suffering a 6-0 reversal.

The Tigers scored their touchdown in the second period after a 62-yard drive from the 33-yard stripe.
Blocking Does Work
First the ball was carried to one side of the line, then to the other with a couple of over the line passes mixed in between with Dave Jackson on the receiving end. Five consecutive first downs carried the ball to the 8-yard stripe before Will Friley, who piloted the Tigers Friday, ran through a big hole on the left side of his own line and over the goal. His attempt to drop-kick the extra point went into the scrimmage line.

The touchdown drive had the crowd of fans on the sidelines cheering as they haven't been accustomed to doing. The offensive blocking of all the athletes was fine and on the touchdown play Friley was not touched by a Groveport lineman until he had crossed the goal line.
Bedlam broke loose after this touchdown.

Breaks Hurt Invaders
But from that point on the game was nip and tuck with Groveport having a little edge. A couple of breaks, including a fumble, a pass interception several violations of lateral and passing rules, kept the Groveport-coached athletes away from the goal.

The Franklin-co crew used a lot of intricate laterals that had the Tiger secondary in a quandary part of the time. Had the Groveport crew tossed a few more laterals they might have dented the goal.
Friley, who directed the Tiger play, confined his athletes to straight football. No tricks were pulled from the bag, not a pass was thrown except a few over the line of scrimmage after the play started as a plunge, no laterals were tossed. The youthful southpaw, who played end last year, did mighty well in the captain's role.

TIGERS WIN FIRST GRIDIRON GAME SINCE 1932, 6 TO 0

About This And That In Many Sports

Holy Rosary Tough

The work of the Red and Black Tiger next Friday is cut out—it's going to be tough—Holy Rosary, Tiger foe, knocks off Hillsboro Friday evening 7-0 under the lights of the Hillsboro field. The Columbus Irish, always followed by a strong aggregation, is undefeated from last year—"Twoold" be mighty nice to send them back home on the short end of the count ***

Westerville Whipped

Other Central Buckeye league teams did nobly in Friday tilts; Bexley trimmed Columbus North, 12 to 6; Grandview won from Gahanna, 12 to 0, but Marysville lost to Kenton, 13 to 2, and Westerville took an unexpected crack on the chin at the hands of the Upper Arlington team, 26 to 0—May be the dry-town athletes aren't so tough as one would think after seeing them hold Central, 6-6 ***

Some other scores:

Chillicothe ran away from Waverly 80 to 0; Wilmington 28-0 over Columbus South; Aquinas 25, Washington C. H. 0; Columbus Central 6, Lancaster 0; Urbana 58; Manchester 0; Columbus East 7, Middletown 6; Hamilton 48, Cincinnati Hartwell 0 ***

Gives Own Belt

Here's just one example to show what Coach Jack Landrum thinks of his boys—When Johnny McGinnis dressed Friday his trouser straps were not big enough for his belt—Landrum took his belt from his trousers and gave it to the center ***

New Jerseys Late

It was fortunate that new jerseys ordered two weeks ago did not arrive for Friday's tilt—They are a real bright crimson, the same color nearly that Groveport wore—They were new black pants and had their headgear painted white—Next Friday they'll look mighty nice in their new jerseys. ***

Who'll Win Fight?

Who is going to win the big fight Tuesday? is a predominant question—despite other opinions, Joe Louis might end the fight with one blow, you never can tell—The clamor for ducats is increasing and a million dollar gate is assured. ***

Mourning Doves

Mourning doves subsist chiefly on seeds, but bird lovers say that the service they perform is almost equal to that of the insectivorous species. The season for feeding their young comes opportunely, says the Indianapolis News, as they consume great quantities of weed seeds. Such grain as they eat is mostly waste in stubble fields. The United States Department of Agriculture, through its biological survey, has classed the dove as one of the useful birds and while it is shot in the South as a game bird, it is protected in most of the states and Canada. ***

RIGHTMIRE AND SCHMIDT PLEASED WITH OHIO STATE GRID PRACTICE

President George W. Rightmire of Ohio State University took time out from preparations for a record freshman class to attend the opening football practice.

This photo of President Rightmire, Coach Francis A. Schmidt, and Captain Gomer Jones indicates that the practice was a very satisfactory affair.

No novice at athletics, the university president understands and enjoys the sport. During his student days in the 1890's, he was a member of the football squad and a track man of no little ability.

Later he was graduate manager of athletics at Ohio State. When Ohio State entered the Western Conference, Mr. Rightmire became the first president of the university's board of control for athletics. He also served for six years as treasurer of the athletics association.

Baer Subject of Criticism Despite Intense Training

SPECULATOR, N. Y., Sept. 21.—The credit due to a man of greatness will be Max Baer's if he succeeds in winning over Joe Louis at Yankee stadium on Tuesday night.

Few men in ring history have been so pelted by adverse criticism as the former heavyweight champion in recent weeks of training here. Sport experts from far and wide who viewed Max in his preparatory moves have voiced their disapproval of his ability, many predicting that Louis will be witnessed in the role of executioner. What has Baer's mental reaction been to all this? Perhaps it is a question. At any rate, it is safe to say that Baer, being human, has not been entirely able to

Gets No Encouragement

In every walk of life men need encouragement. Baer has received little of it for this impending meeting with the Brown bomber. Max has trained religiously, has succeeded in attaining excellent condition, and because, on several recent occasions he has displayed unimpressive glove performances, he has received harsh criticism.

It is surprising, in view of the circumstances, just how well he has retained a standing position. The end of the training period here finds him, as those close to him know, with full confidence in his ability to turn back Louis. "Words will not decide this fight," one of his close handlers said this morning. "Max knows that. He has been in the ring long enough to understand that the final decision will be made when the two principals square off. For, in the ring, anything can happen."

In the meantime Baer goes about his final preparatory stunts for Louis in the same manner as at any time during the long grind.

ST. XAVIER WINS OVER GEORGETOWN

CINCINNATI, Sept. 21.—The 1935 collegiate grid season was officially opened today as Georgetown, Ky., University returned to the Blue Grass country, victims of a 34 to 0 swamping at the hands of St. Xavier here last night.

A throng of 3500 "faithful" watched the Irish roll over the Kentuckians at will.

Andrew Jackson was the first territorial governor of Florida, serving in 1821-1822.

BUCKEYE VARSITY IN 39-0 VICTORY

COLUMBUS, Sept. 21.—Ohio State's gridgers rested, and in some cases recuperated, today after an intense drill yesterday capped off with a scrimmage between the Varsity and Scrubs.

Needless to say, the Varsity marched through, over and around the hapless second-stringers for a 39-0 triumph. Also needless to say, passes of the Schmidt type floated through the air the majority of the afternoon.

Coming as close to a starting lineup as he probably will before the season's inauguration against Kentucky two weeks hence, Coach Francis Schmidt gave the backfield "nod" to Pincura, quarterback, Dick Heekin and Frank Boucher at the halves and Johnny Kabealo at fullback.

Kabealo opened the scoring by dashing 21 yards with the pigskin in the first quarter after receiving a pass. Scores then came fast and in large quantities.

The climax of the scrimmage probably was a successful 52-yard heave, Wasyluk to Bettridge, for the third touchdown.

MONROE TEAMS WIN

Forrest Brown's Monroe-twop boys and girls again won ball games, the boys beating Muhlenberg, 4-3, in a hardball game and the girls copping 17 to 4 in a softball tilt. The games were played at Five Points.

'TEEING OFF'

Someone (Vattier to you) uses two kinds of grips, one for irons and one for woods, and both wrong—His locker room pals call them the interhooking and inter-slicing grips.

Miss Neuding, watching a match at the club: "I've followed them for 12 holes and haven't seen them play a shot yet." "Yes," said Miss Charlotte Bell, but its good for taking off weight."

Tom Brunner proudly: "I once made a four myself on this hole." "What with, a brassie?" asked John Ryan.

Mrs. Robert Musser's first round with the pro: "I don't see what fun he has, he plays so mechanically."

A foursome following the Fussy Foursome: "Have they putted yet?" "No, they're still picking crab grass."

Latest face on the lesson tee: Mrs. Bishop Given.

The golf bug has finally bitten Elmer Clifton.

Growth of Fishes

The growth of fishes probably decelerates with age, but under favorable circumstances it never stops. If fish growth were shown on a graph, the weight curve would show a steady upward line, but the length curve would ascend rapidly at first, then almost straighten out. That is because as the fish grows large, the corresponding increase in girth tends to make the weight increase rather constant. — Detroit Free Press.

CINCINNATI REDS TEST ST. LOUIS

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Sept. 21.—The Cincinnati Reds rolled into town today prepared not only to battle the world's champion Cardinals but also a jinx which has trailed them through the eight previous games played here this season.

Of the eight contests, the Reds have succeeded in winning—exactly none.

St. Louis, considered to have a wonderful opportunity to gain valuable ground on the Chicago Cubs during the three-game Reds series, are expected to start either Hallahan or Paul Dean against Tony Freitas today in an effort to get off to a flying start.

The Welland Canal

The Welland canal, from Port Colborne on Lake Erie to Port Weller is about 25 miles long. The St. Lawrence river, from Lake Ontario to the Gulf is 750 miles. Winning from Ted Yarosz, who was handicapped by a collapsible knee which hardly allowed him to stand, Babe Risko, above, is the new middleweight champion. Risko, a Syracuse battler whose real name is Henry Fylikowski, took the decision after 5 rounds during which Yarosz frequently went down from light punches when his right knee folded.

62-Yard Drive Wins Margin

Groveport Outscores Tigers in First Downs But Breaks Keep Invaders From Coveted Stripe; Friley Goes Over From 8-Yard Mark in Second Session

This story should almost rate page 1 because the last time we had an opportunity to pound this typewriter concerning a football victory was back in 1932 when the Red and Black came home from Marysville with a 13-12 margin. The Tigers scored their touchdown in the second period after a 62-yard drive from the 38-yard stripe.

Five consecutive first downs carried the ball to the 8-yard stripe before Will Friley, who piloted the Tigers Friday, ran through a big hole on the left side of his own line and over the goal. Out-First Downed Groveport gained 13 first downs to nine for the Tigers. Two of the invaders' firsts, however, were the result of pass interference, one of which was very doubtful.

The Tigers lost 65 yards on penalties, 15 yards (three penalties) being for failure to have seven men on the line of scrimmage, this being due to Jenkins' inexperience. Incidentally for having only two practices, Jenkins looked pretty good. Another 15 was charged when food went into the game as a substitute and immediately started to give Friley some instructions. All of these penalties were the result of inexperience.

While everyone was tickled pink to know that Circleville had finally won a football game, Coach Jack Landrum was not in a jovial mood after the final whistle. He knew (and so did his boys) that they weren't blocking and tackling and lining up the way they had been drilled for two weeks. Landrum thought his crew should have won by two more touchdowns.

Given Skill Test

After the game all the athletes were ordered into a classroom and the mistakes of the contest were discussed right there. The coach fired question after question: "where should you have lined up on that play?" "Who was your man on that play?" "Why didn't you do this and why didn't you do that?" The skull session was a good one and should work to the advantage of the squad.

Practices will start Monday evening for the Holy Rosary game next Friday on the local lot.

The Rosary gang is a fast and experienced one and will truly test the Red and Black. The following week the Central Buckeye league season opens with Grandview invading the local green.

The Tiger outfit's only injury was to John Griffith, who was spilled hard on his ouchy shoulder after he had intercepted a fumble and made a nice return. Had Griffith been able to stay in the game the score might have been higher. Dave Jackson, who worked hard every minute he was in the affray, has a wrist that needs attention. His pa, one of the happiest on the sidelines Friday, will have it in shape for next week's play.

of being the first person to appear in the collection. He was soon followed by Marie Dressler, the beloved film actress and later mustachioed Adolf Hitler pulled his coup in Germany and rated "the wall."

Then the pictures started going up in fast order. Came Jean Harlow, the platinum blonde, in a pose that will really make you mean, boys; then Mae West in a charming smile which, if you please, doesn't suggest: "I'm up and see me sometime," and more and more.

Today, the gallery just about fills the entire west wall. Irony is represented in one particular example. We find Governor Davey looking down from above on his "friend," President George Rightmire of Ohio State University.

Sheriff Charles Radcliff, an autograph and all, is in the center of the gallery. Over him is Senator "Vic" Donahey, under him is General Hugh Johnson, on the east (by request of Sam Joseph) is Adolf Hitler and on the west we find the Lindbergh baby.

Notables Present

Mark Twain is there. He looks as though he's speaking to film actress Ann Harding who is standing next to him. Former Lieut. Gov. Charles Sawyer of Cincinnati is present and along side is John McCormack, renowned Irish tenor.

Father Coughlin is seen in a pose at a typewriter; Ted Husing is at home at the microphone. No. 1 G-Man J. Edgar Hoover hangs beside the late, beloved Will Rogers and Wiley Post. Another flyer of repute, Roscoe Turner, looks out from nearby.

Placed next to a fine portrait of Billy Ireland is "Dizzy" Dean, Coach Francis Schmidt of Ohio State, Governor Lehman of New York and the supreme court of the U. S.

Pumpkin show queens of the past two years, Eleanor Anderson Stockden and Lucille Heise Radcliff also grace the collection. Sam Insull is wedged in between Clarence Brown, well known Republican, and Sylvia Sydney of the screen.

Then there's George Arliss in a striking pose and beside him another cinema star, gracious Myrna Loy of "Thin Man" fame.

Thomas and Faye

Chief of Police "Bugs" McCrady is also there handling four or five revolvers at once. Someone has placed this sign above his picture: "The town's Sherlock Holmes." This is one picture you don't want to miss! Lowell Thomas is shown about to broadcast one of his 15-minute news reviews and close to him is Alice Faye who used to perform with Rudy Vallee's orchestra.

Even Lotte Lehman, the Metropolitan opera singer, is present in a beautiful color picture. Close by is "Chic" Sale and Charles "Buddy" Rogers, whose picture incidentally, is autographed.

Oh, folks, they're all there... it's really a great collection which you shouldn't miss.

The Romance Racket
MARIE BLIZARD

READ THIS FIRST:

On her twenty-fourth birthday Carol Kennedy, coming into a vast fortune, suddenly announces to her relatives that she is giving up her old home in Connecticut, where she has lived as an orphan, to move to New York to find happiness and freedom. Among those attending Carol's birthday party are her cousin, Kathy Prentice, and her fiancé, Dr. Owen Craig, whom she is marrying for social prestige. Unattractive Carol, who knows nothing of parties, pretty clothes and beaux, secretly admires Owen.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 3

WHEN KATHY PRENTICE told her fiancé that her drab little Cousin Carol was undoubtedly dreaming, she was right but it was not the sleeper's dream that disturbed Carol. She was dreaming the dreams of the newly awakened.

A new Carol was seeing the world of yesterday in which she lived through eyes which had just realized what she might live today.

As the old limousine bought before her father's death, swung into the driveway, the great house, ponderous in its awkwardness of nineteenth century architecture and filled with faded browns and greens loomed before her.

A brief smile played about her unattractive mouth as she surveyed the back of Robbins' head. What a surprise Robbins and the rest of them had in store. Why even Robbins wouldn't consider me as a girl, she thought. No man ever has although once there was a man on the boat to Algiers. A nice, helpless sort of person who gathered botanical specimens. Mother had liked him, too, but... what had happened? He was about Dr. Craig's height, she remembered.

Carol felt very small. She wanted terribly for someone to be sitting there beside her. Someone like Owen Craig—who would be strong and comforting and say, "There, there, don't worry. There's something we can do." Someone who would take her hand and tell her she was pretty. Oh, how she wanted to be pretty! "There is something I can do," she said aloud.

"What's that, Miss?" Robbins turned a cauliflower ear in her direction.

"I said, Robbins, that I'll want the car to drive back to New York at 1:30 in the morning."

"Yes, Miss," he said respectfully as he brought the car to a stop.

She got her Irish up about something, he thought, and the girl looks almost pretty. Some dimes beat me. Here's one with a million bucks and nothing to do with her time but spend it with a bunch of old books.

"Nanny!" Carol seized her surprised old nurse about the waist and whirled her into her bedroom and flung her wrap on the floor.

"Glory be, child, it must have been a wonderful party!"

"It was, Nanny, and it ended with a great big surprise!"

"Listen, Nanny, I've given the Prentices something to think about! I'm sick of being handled about by those aunts and uncles. I've burned my bridges! I've started... I've started on the... the primrose path!"

Excitement burned fever spots in her pale cheeks. Nanny wondered if her baby had gone off her mind.

"Now, dear, sit here quietly and tell me what happened. If one of them has hurt you..." Her tone left nothing to the imagination.

"Oh, no, they didn't hurt me. They brought out all the old silver and lace. Aunt Grace wore all her diamonds and even Kathy showed up. Uncle Howard gave me his pearls. I mean his Matilde's pearls."

"Now, I call that real nice of him."

"He gave me something else, too; course." Carol sat down on her bed and slowly slipped off her old-fashioned black satin slipper.

"Tell me about the rest of your presents," Nanny urged hoping to bring something more normal in the way of behavior from her charge.

"I've burned my bridges, Nanny!"

"Oh, yes, the other presents." Carol kicked off the other slipper and with a brittle brightness began to enumerate. "Tomorrow, Nanny, you'll take a picture of me in this dress. We'll call it BEFORE and keep it as a record."

"Carol Kennedy, I don't know what's come over you. That's a very nice dress." Nanny's voice was a little heated.

"Isn't it?" Carol stood before an old-fashioned mirror, viewing herself, "Black velvet and quite regal with my hair in a coronet of braids." That brought a pause as her mirrored reflection told her that Dr. Craig's words were spoken more in kindness than in truth. A lump rose in her throat but there was a desperate gaiety in her voice as she went on:

"Yes, quite a picture of fashion I am. The Modest Young Girl. Skirt neither long nor short. Neckline... horrible!"

"And my hair, Nanny, have you noticed that?" Suddenly she tore the pins that confined the braids and let the hair fall in drab disarray.

"It's neither brown nor yellow, neither curly nor straight," Carol continued to regard herself thoughtfully.

"And look," Carol lifted her skirts above her knees, "what do you think of my legs, Nanny?"

Nanny was horrified, "Carol, put your dress down this minute and tell me with some sense about the rest of your presents."

"One umbrella, one brocade evening bag and one crocheted bathrobe. Send them to the orphan asylum tomorrow. But... here give me my bag..." her fingers trembled with eagerness as she opened it and plucked its depths, bringing forth a tiny gold enameled lipstick.

"This is Kathy's gift with the advice: 'Use it, darling, you've no idea how it will improve you.'"

Awkwardly she unscrewed the top and, bending forward to the mirror, her unskilled hand painted an ugly line of vermilion around her mouth.

Nanny was speechless. This wildness in Carol made her sad with sympathy. She watched Carol draw her hair back from her face, run a finger down her straight nose and trace the heavy black brows until the hand began to tremble and the eyes fill up with tears.

"Oh, Nanny," she sobbed, "What's going to become of me? Am I really so unattractive?"

"No, my girl," Nanny said loyally, "You've got something other girls haven't got. You've got brains and when they were traipsing around

These Cuddly Toys are Quickly Made

PATTERN 5255

Soft, cuddly animal toys are the favorites of nursery-age youngsters and wise is the mother who realizes how easily and cheaply such toys can be made. No need to buy new material for these; the left-over scraps of calico, chintz or other novelty cottons are adequate and so colorful. With only two simple pieces required for each toy, not counting the ears and elephant's blanket which are separate, the stitching and stuffing are completed in no time at all. Then watch the merriest when you bring out long-eared Peter Rabbit, the terrier that's smart as a whip, and the elephant "just like we saw at the circus!"

In pattern 5255 you will find a transfer pattern for the animals shown; directions for making them and material requirements.

To obtain this pattern send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) to The Herald Household Arts Dept., 124 W. Main-st., Circleville, Ohio.

THEATRES

AT THE CIRCLE

In an office high above Wall street, a lovely golden-haired girl sat with her eyes glued on an official-looking letter. The amazement accentuated as she repeated dazedly to herself, "I can't believe it!" The letter was a notification that Miss Irene Ware had been adjudged "Miss America."

Irene Ware has recently appeared in featured roles in "Affairs of Cellini," "The Raven," and "Rendezvous at Midnight." Her latest picture is "Cheers of the Crowd," which comes to the Circle Theatre for a run of two days, starting Sunday. Cast in the part of a newspaper columnist, Miss Ware has ample opportunity to display her dramatic ability.

AT THE GRAND

The screen's strangest, most weirdly thrilling motion picture comes to town on Sunday when "The Bride of Frankenstein" opens an engagement at the Grand Theatre.

Three years ago the original "Frankenstein" started the hearts of theatre goers to pounding at the exploits of "The Monster" that grotesque creature built up from parts of dead bodies by a half-crazed scientist, and brought to life to pursue a bewildered career of murder and destruction. Now Universal has produced a hair-raising sequel to the original story following the further adventures of the Monster and showing how a woman is constructed in the same manner and brought into the world as his companion.

Poems That Live

MY LAND

She is a rich and rare land;
Oh! she's a fresh and fair land,
She is a dear and rare land—
This native land of mine.

No men than hers are braver—
Her women's hearts ne'er waver;
I'd freely die to save her,
And think my lot divine.

She's not a dull or cold land;
No! she's a warm and bold land;
Oh! she's a true and old land—
This native land of mine.

Could beauty ever guard her,
And virtue still reward her,
No foe would cross her border—
No friend within it pine.

Oh! she's a fresh and fair land,
Oh! she's a true and rare land!
Yes, she's a rare and fair land—
This native land of mine.
—Thomas Osborne Davis.

"Buried" for 90 Days

AVIATOR

said the aviator could expect a favorable tail wind from mid-Atlantic to the Irish coast, but might encounter showers along the way.

The flier carried with him 1,000 letters, some for delivery in Lithuania and others to be mailed there to Lithuanians living in the United States. He also took along a set of memorial ribbons donated by Lithuanian residents of Chicago, which he will place on the graves of two Lithuanian aviators, Darius and Girenas, who met death while attempting a similar flight in 1933.

Waitkus, who was born in Chicago, is 27 years old and of Lithuanian extraction. He was graduated from the Harper high school in Chicago and studied for three years at the University of Chicago.

He received his training as an aviator at March field, California and Kelly field, San Antonio, Tex., and later served as a member of the army pursuit squadron at Selfridge field, Mich. He has had 1,150 hours of flying experience.

His flight is being sponsored by the American-Lithuanian Trans-Atlantic Flight association, in cooperation with the Lithuanian Daily News of Chicago.

Tests New Compass

Its purpose, it is said, is to aid in the planning of a course for a regular trans-Atlantic air line and to test the possibilities of the radio compass as an aid to aviation.

The hawthorne, more particularly the white hawthorne, is used as a hedge in England, and its blossom is familiarly called may.

Setting a new world underground burial mark, Gloria Graves, 20-year-old Ocean Park, Cal. girl, is brought to the surface after having been buried alive since June 15. The new mark, 90 days, surpasses by 39 days what is believed to have been the previous record, set by a man in Atlantic City, N. J. While covered with five tons of earth, Miss Graves was provided with a radio and a telephone and was fed from the surface.

TWELVE TO STUDY SOCIAL FUNCTIONS

Looking toward an early beginning to the social activities, Mr. Fischer on Thursday called a meeting in the library of the Social Committee of the year. Membership in this important group will this year consist of eight students and four faculty members. Comprising the former are two officers each from the Girl Reserves, Junior Reserves, Hi-Y and Stoooges, they are Anne Viorbome, Mary Elizabeth Groce, Ruth Robinson, Harriet Harman, Dick Plum, Rich Harman, George Rader and Fred Grant. Completing the group are the club advisors, Miss Watson, Miss Hitler, Mr. Reger and Mr. Cress.

Mr. Reger will serve as chairman of the committee whose duties will be to outline and sponsor a program of social activities for the year. Again this year the main problem to be worked out is to secure proper places to hold school parties and dances. It is hoped that twelve months hence this vexing problem will be solved by vote of the citizens in November.

At Thursday's meeting the importance was urged by Mr. Fischer of the student members of the committee to take upon their shoulders the chief management of the social program. A second meeting has been called for Monday at 3:45. Announcements of interest will be published by the Red and Black next Saturday.

RALLY OPENS GRIDIRON YEAR

King Football is here! The football season was opened Thursday evening with all the pep and enthusiasm which could be supplied by the High school band, the Stoooge club and the student body.

Things began to happen when, lead by the Band and the Stoooge club, an almost endless chain of the most hilarious, energetic and spirited students ever witnessed started their sinuous, serpentine windings through the highways and byways of Circleville.

Here things were just beginning for the man-made snake found its way to the corner of Court and Main Streets only to give King Football a greater welcome. With the band playing everything from the "Red and Black" to the "Gang's A.I. Here" the student body and Stoooge club added to the liveliness of the occasion with every spirited cheer and song any one of them knew.

Groveport, first opponents of the Tigers, was also there in the person of the C. H. S. gridder's tackling dummy all dolled up in a football suit. Nor was he left at this; his rugged personality was battered and bruised as was evidenced by the tape on his nose and legs. A broken arm also bore mute testimony.

This, only the first of the hilarious outburst of spirited enthusiasm, proved to everyone concerned, "King Football is in Town!"

A Modern Viewpoint (An Editorial)

Can you imagine a bird without feathers or a frame house without weather boarding? Do you like the dull and the drab? Of course not; even the hardest-hearted desperado appreciates soft colors and delicate designs.

The three R's was the sturdy backbone of Grandfather's little red school house; but without the so-called frills and fads, in our high schools today, our ultra-modern mothers and dads would surely think the school was a featherless bird or a boardless house.

In the past ages every generation of people had some definite aim towards which they educated their children. The Indians for example, taught their young to handle the bow and arrow with skill, and even how to make the arrow head from a certain kind of flint. This was essential for the Indian to know because it was upon this that he had to depend for his life and food. The people of the ancient world had different conceptions of what education should train for: the Romans and Spartans thought that the making of soldiers should be the chief purpose of education, while the Athenians thought that the training of athletes, thinkers, and artists was the principal reason for having schools. With changing civilization the ideas and purposes of education change. Today we think of education as preparation for a happy and useful life.

Today we believe that the children of all the people are entitled to an education and make provisions for giving every one an opportunity for training in some type of work. We believe that it is the duty of our own community to set up the standards and make possible these opportunities.

If our schools are to function properly the people should give their support to the leaders in whom they have faith and whose policies are just and progressive. Without this intelligent action on the part of the people our schools will not progress. It is just such action and support that has resulted in our present school system with all of the wonderful advantages which it has to offer.

A good citizen does not always accept a policy set up by an official, but he will consider its merits and demerits. If it is not sound and for the good of the schools, he will not support it; but he will seek either to make it sound through his influence or to substitute a better in its place.

Do you want your children to progress? Then let us look toward the needs of the future and not at the deeds of the past.

FUNDS GIVEN TO AID ATHLETICS

The civic pride of the community was again shown Monday night when the Rotary and Kiwanis clubs in joint meeting contributed $123 to the athletic fund.

This fund has also been aided by private contributions, Lawrence Goeller, C. R. Barnhart, and W. E. Wallace are equipping three boys with football uniforms. The Stoooge club has also aided greatly by turning over the entire amount in their treasury to the fund. A similar thing has been done by the class of 1935.

Circleville High School Athletic association extends its sincere gratitude to these organizations and business men for their donations.

TEACHERS' PICNIC JOYOUS GATHERING

Mound City park on the site of former Camp Sherman at the outskirts of Chillicothe was the scene Monday of a joyous gathering of the teachers of Circleville. The party began immediately after school hours, the attendance reaching almost the 100 percent mark.

A feast de-resistance was the feature of the occasion. Roasting ears, baked ham, baked beans, potato chips, melons, coffee and all the trimming was sewed and devoured in true out-of-door fashion. Guests of the Association were the newly-initiated members of the teaching staff: Miss Rooney, Miss Priest, Mr. Reger, Mr. Jewett, and Mr. Landrum. Other guests were Mrs. Reger and Mrs. Cress.

To Mr. Roy Bowen and his efficient committee goes the credit for the success of the party. Other members of this group were Miss Tolbert, Miss Gordon, Miss Eyman, and Miss Rooney.

Cupid Finds Educators Vulnerable

Again this year the spirit of matrimony stalked into the ranks of the Circleville teaching corps, this time to carry off three of its members.

Last year at this time Mrs. Virgil Cress came as a bride to Circleville and Miss Johnda Tootle, supervisor of music, was married to Prosecuting Attorney Ray W. Davis.

In June 15 at Indianola Church of Christ, Columbus, Ohio, Mr. C. Alton Day and Miss Maud Jeffrey were married. Rev. W. R. Walker, uncle of the bridegroom officiated. The former Mrs. Day will continue to teach this year in the schools of Ashville, while Mr. Day has taken up his abode at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Lea in Watt-st.

An August bride was Miss Elizabeth Helwig who is now known as Mrs. Ralph Ward. Mrs. Ward will teach another year at the Franklin-st. school where she had been serving so efficiently as teacher of the first grade. She and Mr. Ward are also living on Watt-st.

The thirty-first of August at a simple ceremony in the Fairview Avenue M. E. church, Dayton, Miss Grace Duerf and Mr. Elmer E. Reger were wed. Both Mrs. Reger, a graduate of Otterbein, and the new principal of C. H. S. were former teachers at Orville where their romance began.

The Regers are living in the newly-remodeled double at 413 S. Court-st.

SAME YOUTHS LEAD HI-Y AND STOOGES

No longer need there be fear of intrusion into the ranks of Stoooges and Hi-Y's of the well known, green-eyed monster. These two popular clubs, at least for the year being, have become one in spirit and helmsmen.

Manning the Hi-Y ship of state this year are Dick Plum, Fred Grant, Billy Kellstadt, Rich Harman, and George Rader. In charge of the Stoooges for the coming months, on the other hand, will be George Rader, Rich Harman, Billy Kellstadt, Fred Grant, and Dick Plum. So if the clubs wish to stage a fight a civil war it must be.

Admitted to the roster of the Stoooges this week were Arthur Throne, Dick Mills and Raymond Adkins. This brings this club's roster to 17 out of a possible membership of 20.

An open meeting will be held next week. At that time the Hi-Y will admit 20 to the membership of the club.

Needless to say election to those clubs is eagerly sought after by the boys of the school.

The Hi-Y will meet as in former years during the eighth period. Principal Reger will replace Mr. Gephart as adviser of this organization.

The home of Dick Plum was the scene of the first Stoooge gathering of the year. These backers of the school's athletics will continue their custom of evening meeting in their various homes.

Mr. Cress will advise this energetic group.

Piano Accompanists Named By Director

Miss Priest has selected the piano accompanists for class music, Girls' Glee club and chapel programs.

Alice Grimmer will accompany the seniors, Betty Weiler the juniors, Wanda Seymour the Sophomores and Martha Goeller the freshmen.

The last named will also play for the Girls' Glee club.

Betty Weiler and Alice Grimmer will be the pianists for future assembly programs.

Rev. L. C. Sherburne took as the keynote of his address Monday morning in assembly program the same thought which the faculty has been stressing during this school year.

Busy as bees are the teachers of the city these days! The next big event on their calendar is the meeting next Saturday of all the instructors of Circleville and Pickaway-co at which for the second consecutive year the former will be hosts to the latter.

The 1934 gathering a year ago was named such an outstanding success that by unanimous vote it was decided to repeat the venture this year.

On behalf of the teachers of the county Supt. George McDowell has accepted the invitation extended last June by the Circleville City Teachers' association.

Included on the program will be several speakers of national repute. At the morning session to begin at ten o'clock will be Miss Frances Mason of Chicago, a specialist in arithmetic methods; and Dr. Boyd H. Bode, renowned philosopher and educator of Ohio State university.

An after-luncheon speaker who has never failed to charm Circleville audiences has been secured in the person of Dr. Otto Meeus, president of Capital university.

A program of music for both sessions is being planned. In charge of arrangements for this event are the officers of the City Teachers' Association; Virgil Cress, president; and Lucile Neuding, Alma Rains and Miss Brennen.

Other committee members named by Mr. Cress to further arrangements are Miss Mattinson, Miss Rader, Miss Roberts, Miss Fohl, Miss Walters, Miss Pigman and Miss Helen Yates.

PEP GATHERING GREETED BY MANY

Opening the first pep assembly of the current year Wednesday afternoon, Dr. G. D. Phillips, member of the Rotary club and booster of Circleville athletics, spoke to the student body on "The Spirit of Athletics."

Principal Reger and Coach Jack Landrum also spoke of the coming football season.

The need of the backing of the student body was stressed by Mr. Reger, while Coach Landrum stated, "If the boys who are out for football can practice from three to four hours every day, certainly the student body can give two hours of their time to backing the team."

Tryouts were held for the cheerleader aspirants during the program when each was given a chance to display his talents.

From the group of cheerleaders Cora Camp and Margaret Reigel were chosen by the student body.

Two of last year's cheerleaders, Marvene Wallace and Dorothy Beatty both seniors, will again be back.

The assembly was opened and closed with the singing of the "Red and Black."

Miss Priest lead the singing during the Pep meeting.

In the near future the various classes will make plans for organizing for the school year.

Gift From Gephart Accepted By School

Letters of thanks and appreciation have just been mailed to Mr. Gephart, by the Board of Education and the City Teachers' association for a splendid gift to the school by the former high school principal before his departure for Ashtabula.

The gift is a large Brunswick victrola with approximately 300 records, including many reproductions of masterpieces.

A committee with Mr. Cress as chairman will soon make recommendations as to where the victrola can be used to the best interest of the pupils of Circleville.

As a parting token of appreciation to Mr. and Mrs. Gephart the teachers of the city presented them with an arm chair.

PLOT TO MURDER AUSTRIAN LEADER NIPPED IN VIENNA

VIENNA, Sept. 21.—A plot to murder Prince Ernst Rudiger von Starhemberg, Austrian vice-chancellor, and other high government officials was nipped today at the cost of a police inspector's arm. The inspector's arm was torn off when he opened a suspicious looking package in the post office at Linz, and a bomb burst. Ten similar parcels addressed to Prince Starhemberg and others were confiscated.

TWELVE TO STUDY SOCIAL FUNCTIONS

Looking toward an early beginning to the social activities, Mr. Fischer on Thursday called a meeting in the library of the Social Committee of the year.

Membership in this important group will this year consist of eight students and four faculty members. Comprising the former are two officers each from the Girl Reserves, Junior Reserves, Hi-Y, and Stoooges, they are Anne Vierbome, Mary Elizabeth Groce, Ruth Robinson, Harriet Harman, Dick Plum, Rich Harman, George Rader and Fred Grant. Completing the group are the club advisors, Miss Watson, Miss Hitler, Mr. Reger and Mr. Cress.

Mr. Reger will serve as chairman of the committee whose duties will be to outline and sponsor a program of social activities for the year.

Again this year the main problem to be worked out is to secure proper places to hold school parties and dances. It is hoped that twelve months hence this vexing problem will be solved by vote of the citizens in November.

At Thursday's meeting the importance was urged by Mr. Fischer of the student members of the committee to take upon their shoulders the chief management of the social program.

A second meeting has been called for Monday at 3:45. Announcements of interest will be published by the Red and Black next Saturday.

UNDERCLASSEMEN TO ASSIST IN LIBRARY

After being unable to find enough seniors whose schedules permitted their working in the library, Miss Watson chose girls from the sophomore, junior, and post-graduate classes as well.

The staff now includes Ann Denman, Jessie Dreshbach, Alice Griner, Sally May, Ruth Robinson, Thelma Piper, Sara Steinhauer, and Anne Vierbome.

Miss Watson has charge of the library three periods a day and Miss Yates two. Other periods find Mr. Ely, Mr. Jewett, and Mr. Landrum in charge.

Much has been done to improve the conditions of the books in the library. Many were rebound during the summer. The staff is working diligently to get all the books mended.

New music has been ordered and 20 boys are expected at the next practice. Plans have been made for a novel assembly program by which the club will be introduced.

RALLY OPENS GRIDIRON YEAR

King Football is here! The football season was opened Thursday evening with all the pep and enthusiasm which could be supplied by the High school band, the Stoooge club and the student body.

Things began to happen when, led by the Band and the Stoooge club, an almost endless chain of the most hilarious, energetic and spirited students ever witnessed started their sinuous, serpentine windings through the highways and byways of Circleville.

Here things were just beginning for the man-made snake found its way to the corner of Court and Main Streets only to give King Football a greater welcome. With the band playing everything from the "Red and Black" to the "Gang's A-I Here", the student body and Stoooge club added to the liveliness of the occasion with every spirited cheer and song any one of them knew.

Groveport, first opponents of the Tigers, was also there in the person of the C. H. S. gridder's tackling dummy all dolled up in a football suit. Nor was he left at this; his rugged personality was battered and bruised as was evidenced by the tape on his nose and legs. A broken arm also bore mute testimony.

This, only the first of the hilarious outburst of spirited enthusiasm, proved to everyone concerned, "King Football's in Town!"

A Modern Viewpoint

(An Editorial)

Can you imagine a bird without feathers or a frame house without weather boarding? Do you like the dull and the drab? Of course not; even the hardest-hearted desperado appreciates soft colors and delicate designs.

The three R's was the sturdy backbone of Grandfather's little red school house; but without the so-called frills and fads in our high schools today, our ultra-modern mothers and dads would surely think the school was a featherless bird or a boardless house.

In the past ages every generation of people had some definite aim towards which they educated their children. The Indians for example, taught their young to handle the bow and arrow with skill, and even how to make the arrow head from a certain kind of flint. This was essential for the Indian to know because it was upon this that he had to depend for his life and food. The people of the ancient world had different conceptions of what education should train for: the Romans and Spartans thought that the making of soldiers should be the chief purpose of education, while the Athenians thought that the training of athletes, thinkers, and artists was the principal reason for having schools. With changing civilization the ideas and purposes of education change. Today we think of education as preparation for a happy and useful life.

Today we believe that the children of all the people are entitled to an education and make provisions for giving every one an opportunity for training in some type of work. We believe that it is the duty of our own community to set up the standards and make possible these opportunities.

If our schools are to function properly the people should give their support to the leaders in whom they have faith and whose policies are just and progressive. Without this intelligent action on the part of the people our schools will not progress. It is just such action and support that has resulted in our present school system with all of the wonderful advantages which it has to offer.

A good citizen does not always accept a policy set up by an official, but he will consider its merits and demerits. If it is not sound and for the good of the schools, he will not support it; but he will seek either to make it sound through his influence or to substitute a better in its place.

Do you want your children to progress? Then let us look toward the needs of the future and not at the deeds of the past.

SAME YOUTHS LEAD HI-Y AND STOOGES

No longer need there be fear of intrusion into the ranks of Stoooges and Hi-Y's of the well known, green-eyed monster. These two popular clubs, at least for the year being, have become one in spirit—and helmets.

Manning the Hi-Y ship of state this year are Dick Plum, Fred Grant, Billy Kellstadt, Rich Harman, and George Rader. In charge of the Stoooges for the coming months, on the other hand, will be George Rader, Rich Harman, Billy Kellstadt, Fred Grant, and Dick Plum. So if the clubs wish to stage a fight a civil war it must be.

Admitted to the roster of the Stoooges this week were Arthur Throne, Dick Mills and Raymond Adkins. This brings this club's roster to 17 out of a possible membership of 20.

An open meeting will be held next week. At that time the Hi-Y will admit 20 to the membership of the club.

Needless to say election to those clubs is eagerly sought after by the boys of the school.

The Hi-Y will meet as in former years during the eighth period. Principal Reger will replace Mr. Gephart as adviser of this organization.

The home of Dick Plum was the scene of the first Stoooge gathering of the year. These backers of the school's athletics will continue their custom of evening meeting in their various homes.

Mr. Cress will advise this energetic group.

NEW "LAB" MATERIALS

Miss Hitler and the classes in Biology will soon be made happy by the arrival of new laboratory materials. The Board of Education this week passed upon the recommendations.

These new courses in science were started a year ago and have been proving a popular addition to the school curriculum.

Cupid Finds Educators Vulnerable

Again this year the spirit of matrimony stalked into the ranks of the Circleville teaching corps, this time to carry off three of its members.

Last year at this time Mrs. Virgil Cress came as a bride to Circleville and Miss Johnna Tootle, supervisor of music, was married to Prosecuting Attorney Ray W. Davis.

In June 15 at Indianola Church of Christ, Columbus, Ohio, Mr. C. Alton Day and Miss Maud Jeffrey were married. Rev. W. R. Walker, uncle of the bridegroom officiated. The former Mrs. Day will continue to teach this year in the schools of Ashley, while Mr. Day has taken up his abode at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Lea in Watt-st.

An August bride was Miss Elizabeth Helwagen who is now known as Mrs. Ralph Ward. Mrs. Ward will teach another year at the Franklin-st school where she had been serving so efficiently as teacher of the first grade. She and Mr. Ward are also living on Watt-st.

The thirty-first of August at a simple ceremony in the Fairview Avenue M. E. church, Dayton, Miss Grace Duerr and Mr. Elmer E. Reger were wed. Both Mrs. Reger, a graduate of Otterbein, and the new principal of C. H. S. were former teachers at Orrville where their romance began.

The Regers are living in the newly-remodeled double at 413 S. Court-st.

PEP GATHERING GREETED BY MANY

Opening the first pep assembly of the current year Wednesday afternoon, Dr. G. D. Phillips, member of the Rotary club and booster of Circleville athletics, spoke to the student body on "The Spirit of Athletics."

Principal Reger and Coach Jack Landrum also spoke of the coming football season.

The need of the backing of the student body was stressed by Mr. Reger, while Coach Landrum stated, "If the boys who are out for football can practice from three to four hours every day, certainly the student body can give two hours of their time to backing the team."

Tryouts were held for the cheerleader aspirants during the program when each was given a chance to display his talents.

From the group of cheerleaders Cora Camp and Margaret Reigel were chosen by the student body.

Two of last year's cheerleaders, Marvene Wallace and Dorothy Beatty both seniors, will again be back.

The assembly was opened and closed with the singing of the "Red and Black."

Miss Priest led the singing during the Pep meeting.

CLASS ADVISORS CHOSEN FOR YEAR

A number of changes have been made this year in class advisers. Sponsoring the seniors this year will be Miss Mattinson, who a number of years has been in charge of the annual.

Mr. Cress will advise the juniors; and helping to direct the sophs and freshmen, respectively, will be Miss Rains and Mr. Jewett.

In the near future the various classes will make plans for organizing for the school year.

Gift From Gephart Accepted By School

Letters of thanks and appreciation have just been mailed to Mr. Gephart, by the Board of Education and the City Teachers' association for a splendid gift to the school by the former high school principal before his departure for Ashtabula.

The gift is a large Brunswick victrola with approximately 300 records, including many reproductions of masterpieces.

A committee with Mr. Cress as chairman will soon make recommendations as to where the victrola can be used to the best interest of the pupils of Circleville.

As a parting token of appreciation to Mr. and Mrs. Gephart the teachers of the city presented them with an arm chair.
